TOWNSHIP PAID HALF COST OF BUILDING, SAYS LEGAL ADVISER

Structure Erected Under Act of State Legislature.

$4,000 INVESTED

Prosecutor Searches Records When Rent Demand is Made.

East Liverpool's city hall, erected in 1877, was erected jointly by Liverpool township and the city.

This was the ruling today of Prosecuting Attorney Jesse C. Hanley, in reply to the inquiry from the township trustees as to the rightful owners of the building, now housing the city jail, police headquarters, mayor's office and other municipal offices.

Prosecutor Hanley, after a search of the records in his office and at Lisbon, found that the structure was erected through a special act of the legislature, at a cost of approximately $4,000. Of this amount $2,000 was paid by the city and the other $2,000 by the township.

Site For Market House.

The site on which the structure stands was intended for street purposes, bordering a proposed market house, which was to occupy the intersection of Market and Third street, with a driveway around the building.

Township trustees, who, it is claimed, use no part of the building at the present time nor have they used it for many years, recently asked the city, through Mayor Brown, for a nominal rental fee for their half of the structure, which the city occupies. It was pointed out that when the structure was erected, part of it was used for township offices, but gradually the city took over the entire building.

CROXALL QUITS HEALTH BOARD

Declines to Reconsider Resignation Submitted Month Ago.

The board of health, when it meets in the clinic rooms, in the Diamond tonight, will be without the services of Joseph T. Croxall chairman of the board for more than six years, who recently tendered his resignation to Mayor Charles Brown, effective December 1.

Notwithstanding efforts on the part of fellow members and Mayor Brown, Mr. Croxall declared this morning that he would not reconsider his resignation. Mayor Brown has withheld the appointment of a successor to Mr. Croxall in hopes that he could be prevailed upon to remain on the board.

Mr. Croxall, in tendering his resignation to Mayor Brown about a month ago, asserted that he could not devote sufficient time to the work.

He was appointed during the first administration of Mayor J. S. Wilson, being re-appointed for a five-year-term during the latter part of Mr. Wilson's third term. He has been unusually active in the health board work, being largely instrumental in the establishment of a clinic in connection with the board's activities. The clinic, which was started from funds derived through public subscription and money contributed from the War Chest, is now being operated, it is claimed, on almost self-sustaining basis.

The monthly meeting of the board is scheduled for New Year's Eve but because of the holiday's it was deemed advisable to advance the date.

Mayor Brown is expected to announce a successor to Mr. Croxall within the next few days. Other members of the board are Dr. K. C Willis, Ralph Benedum, Prof. I. A. Hoffman and S. C. Williams.

Responsibility for Local Enforcement of Dry Laws Will be Passed to City, County and State Authorities.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23—Responsibility for local enforcement of prohibition laws during 1925 will be passed to city, county and state authorities while the Federal forces concentrate their efforts on "the big fellows" whose operations run into the realms of high finance.

Federal Prohibition Director Roy A. Haynes made this statement to International News Service today in an interview outlining his plans for the next year.

"Get the source, get the big fellow," will be the watchword of the Federal authorities.

Co-Operation Sought.

"Co-operation of the federal, state and municipal governments will be the slogan for 1925," Haynes declared.

"That will put the federal prohibition unit in a position to eliminate the sources of illicit whisky supply and attack the big problems that confront us. I am confident that we shall accomplish much toward more and better effective enforcement of the law.

"The federal government has been pledged the support of the local authority throughout the United States in the new year's campaign. This co-operation has been more in evidence during the last year than ever before and we have every confidence that it will reach the desired plane in 1923.

"This co-operation is essential in arriving at real prohibition. It was the plan of framers of the Volstead act that the petty violations should be taken care of locally and that the federal government, while exercising supervision over this enforcement, should concentrate on situations involving major violations."

Illicit Traffic Source Closed.

Haynes believes that the sources of "socalled good quality beverage liquor," have been closed effectively during the last year, and that today it is difficult to obtain anything but poisonous beverage whiskey.

"Comparing today with 1920, more than 12,500,000 gallons of whiskey were withdrawn from bonded ware-

Fines and forfeitures aggregating $5,700,000 in criminal cases and $855,300 in civil liability cases were contained.

Records show that there are now approximately 32,000,000 gallons of whiskey still in government bonded warehouses.

REBELS CAPTURE ALBANIAN CITIES

LONDON, Dec. 23.—A Column of Albanian rebels entered Tirana, the capital, yesterday and also captured Scutari, according to a dispatch from Belgrade which reached London today.

Last dispatches to reach London and also coming by way of Belgrade, reported fighting between rebel and government troops in the mountain passes near Tirana. This battle was expected to be the turning point of the rebel movement in Albania.

The rebels now either are in control or are virtually in control of Albania, was the view-point diplomats took on learning of the report that Tirana had fallen to the rebels.

Jugo Slavia is reported to have closed its Albanian frontier.

GLASGOW RIOTS ARE UNDER WAY

Pre-Christmas Feud Between Tenants and Landlords.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Dec. 23.—Pre-Christmas riots began here today. The police were using every effort to keep the unruly crowds in order.

For months there has been a feud between tenants and landlords of the Clyde bank, which is the slum area. The tenants have refused to pay the landlords and the landlords have been trying to evict the tenants.

Some time ago the tenants established night patrols which barred eviction. This morning eviction agents, escorted by 60 police, swooped down on the district just as the patrol went off duty. The tenants raised an alarm by ringing bells. Huge crowds gathered and attempted to mob the eviction forces. Police intervened and the agents were able to make several evictions.

BY W. A. DAY.

President, the Equitable Life Assurance Society, of New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—I shall leave it to others to speak of business in general and shall confine myself to my impressions regarding the influence of life insurance on the situation.

As the company with which I am connected has transacted a larger business this year than ever before, it is reasonable to expect distinct progress in 1925, and what is true of one company is doubtless true of other companies.

And if the business of life insurance shows improvement, that will have a favorable influence on business in general, the fact is now generally recognized that the safest and best promoters of thrift are the life insurance companies and the savings banks. As we learn to save, we shall cease to be regarded as the most masterful of peoples.

Railroad Aid Encouraging.

At the present time economy appears to be the watchword of our National government and if a good example is set there, it is reasonable to hope that the state governments will endeavor to be less extravagant than in the past.

HANLEY RULES ON CITY HALL

Structure Erected Under Act of State Legislature.

$4,000 INVESTED

Prosecutor Searches Records When Rent Demand is Made.

East Liverpool's city hall, erected in 1877, was erected jointly by Liverpool township and the city.

This was the ruling today of Prosecuting Attorney Jesse C. Hanley, in reply to the inquiry from the township trustees as to the rightful owners of the building, now housing the city jail, police headquarters, mayor's office and other municipal offices.

Prosecutor Hanley, after a search of the records in his office and at Lisbon, found that the structure was erected through a special act of the legislature, at a cost of approximately $4,000. Of this amount $2,000 was paid by the city and the other $2,000 by the township.

Site For Market House.

The site on which the structure stands was intended for street purposes, bordering a proposed market house, which was to occupy the intersection of Market and Third street, with a driveway around the building.

Township trustees, who, it is claimed, use no part of the building at the present time nor have they used it for many years, recently asked the city, through Mayor Brown, for a nominal rental fee for their half of the structure, which the city occupies. It was pointed out that when the structure was erected, part of it was used for township offices, but gradually the city took over the entire building.

The township trustees claim they

CROXALL QUITS HEALTH BOARD

Declines to Reconsider Resignation Submitted Month Ago.

The board of health, when it meets in the clinic rooms, in the Diamond tonight, will be without the services of Joseph T. Croxall chairman of the board for more than six years, who recently tendered his resignation to Mayor Charles Brown, effective December 1.

Notwithstanding efforts on the part of fellow members and Mayor Brown, Mr. Croxall declared this morning that he would not reconsider his resignation. Mayor Brown has withheld the appointment of a successor to Mr. Croxall in hopes that he could be prevailed upon to remain on the board.

Mr. Croxall, in tendering his resignation to Mayor Brown about a month ago, asserted that he could not devote sufficient time to the work.

He was appointed during the first administration of Mayor J. S. Wilson, being re-appointed for a five-year-term during the latter part of Mr. Wilson's third term. He has been unusually active in the health board work, being largely instrumental in the establishment of a clinic in connection with the board's activities. The clinic, which was started from funds derived through public subscription and money contributed from the War Chest, is now being operated, it is claimed, on almost self-sustaining basis.

The monthly meeting of the board is scheduled for New Year's Eve but because of the holiday's it was deemed advisable to advance the date.

Mayor Brown is expected to announce a successor to Mr. Croxall within the next few days. Other members of the board are Dr. K. C Willis, Ralph Benedum, Prof. I. A. Hoffman and S. C. Williams.

Federal Prohibition Forces Will Center Guns On 'Big Fellows' In 1925, Haynes Says

One Slain, Two Wounded by Dry Agents in Raid

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 23.—One man was dead today and two others lay wounded as the result of a search for distilleries by four prohibition agents.

L. E. Story, driving an automobile, was struck and killed by a bullet from an agent's high powered rifle while trying to escape. Later the officers went to the home of E. R. Bishop where they shot E. C. Blankenship, who fled after being ordered to halt. A third man, whose name was not learned, was shot in the leg with buckshot, but not seriously injured.

Responsibility for Local Enforcement of Dry Laws Will be Passed to City, County and State Authorities.

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.

(Copyright, 1924, by I. N. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23—Responsibility for local enforcement of prohibition laws during 1925 will be passed to city, county and state authorities while the Federal forces concentrate their efforts on "the big fellows" whose operations run into the realms of high finance.

Federal Prohibition Director Roy A. Haynes made this statement to International News Service today in an interview outlining his plans for the next year.

"Get the source, get the big fellow," will be the watchword of the Federal authorities.

Co-Operation Sought.

"Co-operation of the federal, state and municipal governments will be the slogan for 1925," Haynes declared.

"That will put the federal prohibition unit in a position to eliminate the sources of illicit whisky supply and attack the big problems that confront us. I am confident that we shall accomplish much toward more and better effective enforcement of the law.

"The federal government has been pledged the support of the local authority throughout the United States in the new year's campaign. This co-operation has been more in evidence during the last year than ever before and we have every confidence that it will reach the desired plans in 1923.

"This co-operation is essential in arriving at real prohibition. It was the plan of framers of the Volstead act that the petty violations should be taken care of locally and that the federal government, while exercising supervision over this enforcement, should concentrate on situations involving major violations."

Illicit Traffic Source Closed.

Haynes believes that the sources of "socalled good quality beverage liquor," have been closed effectively during the last year, and that today it is difficult to obtain anything but poisonous beverage whiskey.

"Comparing today with 1920, more than 12,500,000 gallons of whiskey were withdrawn from bonded ware-

69,000 Arrests On Liquor Counts During 12 Months

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23—During the last 12 months more than 69,000 persons were arrested for violation of the prohibition laws, according to records of the prohibition department.

Fines and forfeitures aggregating $5,700,000 in criminal cases and $855,300 in civil liability cases were contained.

Records show that there are now approximately 32,000,000 gallons of whiskey still in government bonded warehouses.

19 CRIPPLES ARE GUESTS AT ROTARY CLUB'S HOLIDAY PARTY

Christmas Presents Provided for Children at Luncheon.

LADIES ATTEND

Musical Program is Given by Juvenile Entertainers.

Nineteen crippled children, including half a dozen from Wellsville and one from Chester, W. Va., were guests of the Rotary club at a Christmas party at noon today in the gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A.

The faith of 19 young boys and girls in the beneficences of that grand old man, Santa Claus, remains unbroken.

And 50 or more members of the Rotary club, as well as wives and guests who came to aid in the entertainment for the little tots with defective bodies left their seats with their faith in the brotherhood of humanity brought to a higher plane.

The Rotary club has averted a cheerless Christmas for their little guests of today, for each went home with a gift bundle underneath his or her arm and, as little Tommy said, "One of the swellest feeds I've ever tackled."

In the absence of Chairman E. G. Sturgis, C. R. Boyce performed the duties of the office. He announced plans for the anniversary Ladies' Night dinner which will be held on Monday night at the Country club. W. E. Wells will be chairman.

Business matters were brief and to the point. And the Christmas party committee, who assisted Saint Nick, there himself in costume and all, got down to work.

The crippled tots were seated about a table in the center of the gymnasium floor. A small Christmas tree, decorated, centered the table. Blaine Cochran gave the little guests all the Akron Lad Faces Sad Christmas Behind Steel Bars.

ROBBERY COUNT

Youth Attributes His Misery to Frequenting Poolrooms.

AKRON, Dec. 23.—In city jail today a 15-year-old Cleveland youth, who has been attending high school here while living with his grandmother, wept a little as he considered the prospect of spending Christmas in a cell.

Alexander, (which is not his right name) is one of five boys about the same age, all but one of them local school pupils, who are held on charges of robbing the superintendent's safe in North High school. The lads were in search of sledges and implements with which to rob an Acme grocery safe nearby. When they got to the superintendent's safe they found $400 in Liberty bonds, some money and jewelry and put off the grocery job.

Alexander attributes his misery to pool rooms.

REBELS CAPTURE ALBANIAN CITIES

LONDON, Dec. 23.—A Column of Albanian rebels entered Tirana, the capital, yesterday and also captured Scutari, according to a dispatch from Belgrade which reached London today.

Last dispatches to reach London and also coming by way of Belgrade, reported fighting between rebel and government troops in the mountain passes near Tirana. This battle was expected to be the turning point of the rebel movement in Albania.

The rebels now either are in control or are virtually in control of Albania, was the view-point diplomats took on learning of the report that Tirana had fallen to the rebels.

Jugo Slavia is reported to have closed its Albanian frontier.

BIG INSURANCE CO. CHIEF SEES BRIGHT FUTURE

W. A. Day, Equitable President, Predicts Progress in 1925.

URGES ECONOMY

Insurance Companies and Banks Promoters of Thrift.

BY W. A. DAY.

President, the Equitable Life Assurance Society, of New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—I shall leave it to others to speak of business in general and shall confine myself to my impressions regarding the influence of life insurance on the situation.

As the company with which I am connected has transacted a larger business this year than ever before, it is reasonable to expect distinct progress in 1925, and what is true of one company is doubtless true of other companies.

And if the business of life insurance shows improvement, that will have a favorable influence on business in general, the fact is now generally recognized that the safest and best promoters of thrift are the life insurance companies and the savings banks. As we learn to save, we shall cease to be regarded as the most masterful of peoples.

Railroad Aid Encouraging.

At the present time economy appears to be the watchword of our National government and if a good example is set there, it is reasonable to hope that the state governments will endeavor to be less extravagant than in the past.

GLASGOW RIOTS ARE UNDER WAY

Pre-Christmas Feud Between Tenants and Landlords.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Dec. 23.—Pre-Christmas riots began here today. The police were using every effort to keep the unruly crowds in order.

For months there has been a feud between tenants and landlords of the Clyde bank, which is the slum area. The tenants have refused to pay the landlords and the landlords have been trying to evict the tenants.

Some time ago the tenants established night patrols which barred eviction. This morning eviction agents, escorted by 60 police, swooped down on the district just as the patrol went off duty. The tenants raised an alarm by ringing bells. Huge crowds gathered and attempted to mob the eviction forces. Police intervened and the agents were able to make several evictions.

HOMELESS WILL VISIT WALL ST.

Plan Demonstration to Get Church to Shelter Jobless.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—A regiment of the "hopeless" led by "Mr. Zero," champion of the jobless, is scheduled to march on the New York financial district tomorrow.

This ragged army, "Mr. Zero," said today, will wage a silent demonstration in front of the offices of rich vestrymen of trinity church.

"We hope through this demonstration," said Urbain L. Ledoux, who is "Mr. Zero," to get the use of St. Augustine chapel in Houston street, to shelter jobless men. The congregation of St. Augustine's has only 50 persons. The church would house 1,000 men who have no shleter."

While the "regiment" is standing "heel to heel," at the curb, "Mr Zero" will go, he said, to offices of rich vestrymen and make his plea.

"For three years I have been trying to get St. Augustine's chapel," said "Mr. Zero," "but always I have been put off. Several years ago I attended a conference of high church officials and we talked over the matter. They said it was a matter for the vestrymen to decide. It was to have been laid before the vestrymen. That's the last I ever heard of it."

The regiment, 500 strong, was being organized today at "The Tub," the five-cent eating house which "Mr. Zero" maintains at 33 St. Mark's place.

The men are to march, according to "Mr Zero's" plan two by two, down Eighth street to Broadway and down Broadway to Wall Street and thence into Broad street. There are to be two main orders. One will be "halt." The other "Heel to Curb." Any man who disobeys orders or becomes other than a "silent demonstrator," will be taken in hand by one of the ex-service men, there being one ex-service man to every twenty men. Those of the jobless who have hats will remove them in front of the vestrymen's offices.

Mr. Zero said that he would say to the vestrymen:

"Can you eat or sleep in peace as caretakers of Christ's property on the sacred anniversary, while your brothers are shelterless and starving?"

"If they tell me they want to hold a conference, I will say to them, "if there should be a fire or flood in Trinity church would you wait for a conference to save it?"

houses in that year. Withdrawals in 1924 amount to about 1,900,000 gallons." Haynes said.

"This great source of liquor for the l'icit traffic virtually has been closed."

About all the drinking fraternity now has to meet its demands are synthetic liquors and moonshine, according to Haynes who added that this variety of beverages alcoholics is 'pure poison."

Good Label Means Nothing.

Haynes said the 99 percent of the liquor confiscated by Federal and state agents in the last year has been of a quality highly dangerous for human consumption.

Reports from New York and other wet centers that Scotch is selling for $1 a quart were derided.

"A good label doesn't mean a good drink" Haynes said.

Even the liquor that is now smuggled in is bad, according to Haynes.

Man Says he Will "Rot" in Jail Rather Than Support Wife

Robert Johnson, of Gardendale, was committed to the county jail by Justice P. V. Mackall, Tuesday afternoon upon his refusal to support his wife, who is reported to be ill. Johnson was given the alternate of supporting his wife or paying a fine of $100 and costs and serving a jail sentence of 30 days, when arraigned on a charge of abandonment. He told the court he would "rot" in jail before supporting the woman.

William Mercer, chauffeur, was released today upon his promise to contribute $6 weekly toward the support of his minor child, now in custody of his mother, Mrs. Florence Mercer, St. Clair avenue. He, too, was fined $100 and costs and given a jail sentence of 30 days, suspended on condition that he support his child.

Samuel Pugh, Clarksburg potter, is awaiting a hearing this afternoon on a charge of abandoning his three minor children. Pugh was arrested by Constable T. C. Smith on information of his wife, Mrs. Ida Pugh, of Daisy alley.

so good at first but they got better, and I started to loafing in a poolroom. It was there I met Jerry Lala and he got me into this."

Incidentially Lala is known to police as Jerry Orlando. He is about 17 and was on his merry way to Pittsburgh in a stolen automobile after the robbery when the car was recognized by detectives and Orlando was caught. It was his story that resulted in the arrest of his four companions.

Alexander says Jerry and the others told about the Acme job they were about to pull off, and Alexander, needing new clothes, thought that would be a good way to stock up.

He's very sorry now and says it is his last adventure into crime. "If I get out of this I'll go to school until I'm old enough to work and then go straight the rest of my life," he sobbed.

"Hot Owl" is Turkey.

"And what will Alexander have to eat on Christmas in jail," a prison attendant was asked.

"Hot owl," answered the officer looking savagely at the little culprit.

Then softened and explained that "hot owl" was jail language for hot turkey.

Whereat Alexander smiled wanly but did not appear to believe the turkey in jail would be as enjoyable as even hot owl in his grandmother's dining room.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Irregular price movements in the industrial stocks featured the early trading in the stock market today. There were additional evidence of selling for profit-taking in the oils and industrials, thought this selling pressure did not appear to be as heavy as in the first hour on Monday. The high priced industrial stocks were buoyed up by pool support, to which was added a certain amount of buying for short covering But the rank and file of industrial shares which did not have this especial support were compelled to drop down into slightly lower price levels and the same was true of the railroad shares.

Speculation over the rumored melon-cutting in American Can was brought to an end, for the time being, at least, by the action of the directors in declaring an extra cash dividend of $2 a share, and making no comment on the matter of stock dividend. Another railroad was added to the ranks of the dividend payers when the directors of the New York, Ontario and Western road ordered the payment of $1.00 a share to holders of the common stock.

General Electric continued in the first hour the rally which was in progress at the close of Monday's heavy session. The stock sold above 298 where it encountered heavy profit-taking and declined a few points. American Can dropped back on fairly heavy selling in this period, as also did the Pan-American oils which were the leaders in the oil stocks in recent sessions. Cast Iron Pipe was practically unchanged. Philadelphia and Reading Coal encountered heavy selling and lost more than a point.

ROME, Dec. 23. — Pope Pius XI, who had been suffering from a slight attack of influenza, was able to be up today. At 12 o'clock he received Christmas greetings from the cardinals.

The illness was checked, it was said, by his having taken to his bed at once when he felt indisposed.

Notables have already arrived for the holy year celebration. Among the prominent visitors are Cardinal Mercier, the famous Belgian cardinal; Princesses Josephine and Stephanie of Belgium and the Duke of Norfolk of England, all of whom will occupy princes' boxes. Other notables include Prince Christopher of Greece, the Dowager Queen Olga and Prince Andrew and his daughters.

are entitled to rent for a portion of the building, as the municipal officers have permitted the establishment of a club room on the third floor of the building, formerly used by the city engineer. It is alleged by the trustees that this room is heated and lighted at the expense of the city.

Mayor's Rejoinder.

Mayor Brown, admitting today that the building was erected jointly by the city and the township, asserted that the municipal government has always paid for the up-keep, painting and repairing the structure. He added that the police had alawys taken care of township prisoners in the city jail without cost to the township.

"If the township is willing to reimburse teh city for one-half of the money which has been spent in keeping the building in condition and maintaining it, we will give consideration to their demands for a rental fee," declared the mayor. He said that this would amount to far more than the township's $2,000 investment.

As the structure occupies a stone foundation on city property, it automatically becomes the property of the city, the mayor claimed. This ruling the chief executive declared, was made recently by the state auditor when the township trustees pressed their claim for a rental fee.

The trustees have not determined their future action. It was stated by one member of the board that the attorney general will be asked to make a ruling as to whether or not the township has a right to demand rentals from property in which they hold an interest even though it occupies city-owned land.

HOMELESS WILL VISIT WALL ST.

Plan Demonstration to Get Church to Shelter Jobless.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—A regiment of the "hopeless" led by "Mr. Zero," champion of the jobless, is scheduled to march on the New York financial district tomorrow.

This ragged army, "Mr. Zero," said today, will wage a silent demonstration in front of the offices of rich vestrymen of trinity church.

"We hope through this demonstration," said Urbain L. Ledoux, who is "Mr. Zero," to get the use of St. Augustine chapel in Houston street, to shelter jobless men. The congregation of St. Augustine's has only 50 persons. The church would house 1,000 men who have no shelter."

While the "regiment" is standing "heel to heel," at the curb, "Mr Zero" will go, he said, to offices of rich vestrymen and make his plea.

"For three years I have been trying to get St. Augustine's chapel," said "Mr. Zero," "but always I have been put off. Several years ago I attended a conference of high church officials and we talked over the matter. They said it was a matter for the vestrymen to decide. It was to have been laid before the vestrymen. That's the last I ever heard of it."

The regiment, 500 strong, was being organized today at "The Tub," the five-cent eating house which "Mr. Zero" maintains at 33 St. Mark's place.

The men are to march, according to "Mr Zero's" plan two by two, down Eighth street to Broadway and down Broadway to Wall Street and thence into Broad street. There are to be two main orders. One will be "halt." The other "Heel to Curb." Any man who disobeys orders or becomes other than a "silent demonstrator," will be taken in hand by one of the ex-service men, there being one ex service man to every twenty men. Those of the jobless who have hats will remove them in front of the vestrymen's offices.

Mr. Zero said that he would say to the vestrymen:

"Can you eat or sleep in peace as caretakers of Christ's property on the sacred anniversary, while your brothers are shelterless and starving?"

"If they tell me they want to hold a conference, I will say to them, "if there should be a fire or flood in Trinity church would you wait for a conference to save it?"

houses in that year. Withdrawals in 1924 amount to about 1,900,000 gallons." Haynes said.

"This great source of liquor for the illicit traffic virtually has been closed."

About all the drinking fraternity now has to meet its demands are synthetic liquors and moonshine, according to Haynes who added that this variety of beverages alcoholics is 'pure poison."

Good Label Means Nothing.

Haynes said the 99 percent of the liquor confiscated by Federal and state agents in the last year has been of a quality highly dangerous for human consumption.

Reports from New York and other wet centers that Scotch is selling for $1 a quart were derided.

"A good label doesn't mean a good drink" Haynes said.

Even the liquor that is now smuggled in is bad, according to Haynes.

of our insurance companies and of our banking institutions are invested in railway securities, it is encouraging that the railroads are to be helped rather than hindred hereafter in their effort to obtain working capital on the one hand, and on the other to increase their transportation facilities for the benefit of the farmer and shipper of merchandise.

The insurance companies recognize the importance of prosperity among our farmers, and are rendering a valuable service in investing in carefully selected farm mortgages.

Improvement in financial conditions abroad will be helpful to us here because prosperity there will benefit us here, whereas disaster would react upon us sooner or later in many injurious ways.

so good at first but they got better, and I started to loafing in a poolroom. It was there I met Jerry Lala and he got me into this."

Incidentially Lala is known to police as Jerry Orlando. He is about 17 and was on his merry way to Pittsburgh in a stolen automobile after the robbery when the car was recognized by detectives and Orlando was caught. It was his story that resulted in the arrest of his four companions.

Alexander says Jerry and the others told about the Acme job they were about to pull off, and Alexander, needing new clothes, thought that would be a good way to stock up.

He's very sorry now and says it is his last adventure into crime. "If I get out of this I'll go to school until I'm old enough to work and then go straight the rest of my life," he sobbed.

"Hot Owl" is Turkey.

"And what will Alexander have to eat on Christmas in jail," a prison attendant was asked.

"Hot owl," answered the officer looking savagely at the little culprit.

Then softened and explained that "hot owl" was jail language for hot turkey.

Whereat Alexander smiled wanly but did not appear to believe the turkey in jail would be as enjoyable as even hot owl in his grandmother's dining room.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Irregular price movements in the industrial stocks featured the early trading in the stock market today. There were additional evidence of selling for profit-taking in the oils and industrials, thought this selling pressure did not appear to be as heavy as in the first hour on Monday. The high priced industrial stocks were buoyed up by pool support, to which was added a certain amount of buying for short covering But the rank and file of industrial shares which did not have this especial support were compelled to drop down into slightly lower price levels and the same was true of the railroad shares.

Speculation over the rumored meloncutting in American Can was brought to an end, for the time being, at least, by the action of the directors in declaring an extra cash dividend of $2 a share, and making no comment on the matter of stock dividend. Another railroad was added to the ranks of the dividend payers when the directors of the New York, Ontario and Western road ordered the payment of $1.00 a share to holders of the common stock.

General Electric continued in the first hour the rally which was in progress at the close of Monday's heavy session. The stock sold above 298 where it encountered heavy profit-taking and declined a few points. American Can dropped back on fairly heavy selling in this period, as also did the Pan-American oils which were the leaders in the oil stocks in recent sessions. Cast Iron Pipe was practically unchanged. Philadelphia and Reading Coal encountered heavy selling and lost more than a point.

The illness was checked, it was said, by his having taken to his bed at once when he felt indisposed.

Notables have already arrived for the holy year celebration. Among the prominent visitors are Cardinal Mercier, the famous Belgian cardinal; Princesses Josephine and Stephanie of Belgium and the Duke of Norfolk of England, all of whom will occupy princes' boxes. Other notables include Prince Christopher of Greece, the Dowager Queen Olga and Prince Andrew and his daughters.

are entitled to rent for a portion of the building, as the municipal officers have permitted the establishment of a club room on the third floor of the building, formerly used by the city engineer. It is alleged by the trustees that this room is heated and lighted at the expense of the city.

Mayor's Rejoinder.

Mayor Brown, admitting today that the building was erected jointly by the city and the township, asserted that the municipal government has always paid for the up-keep, painting and repairing the structure. He added that the police had always taken care of township prisoners in the city jail without cost to the township.

"If the township is willing to reimburse teh city for one-half of the money which has been spent in keeping the building in condition and maintaining it, we will give consideration to their demands for a rental fee," declared the mayor. He said that this would amount to far more than the township's $2,000 investment.

As the structure occupies a stone foundation on city property, it automatically becomes the property of the city, the mayor claimed. This ruling the chief executive declared, was made recently by the state auditor when the township trustees pressed their claim for a rental fee.

The trustees have not determined their future action. It was stated by one member of the board that the attorney general will be asked to make a ruling as to whether or not the township has a right to demand rentals from property in which they hold an interest even though it occupies city-owned land.

HOMELESS WILL VISIT WALL ST.

Plan Demonstration to Get Church to Shelter Jobless.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—A regiment of the "hopeless" led by "Mr. Zero," champion of the jobless, is scheduled to march on the New York financial district tomorrow.

This ragged army, "Mr. Zero," said today, will wage a silent demonstration in front of the offices of rich vestrymen of trinity church.

"We hope through this demonstration," said Urbain L. Ledoux, who is "Mr. Zero," to get the use of St. Augustine chapel in Houston street, to shelter jobless men. The congregation of St. Augustine's has only 50 persons. The church would house 1,000 men who have no shleter."

While the "regiment" is standing "heel to heel," at the curb, "Mr Zero" will go, he said, to offices of rich vestrymen and make his plea.

"For three years I have been trying to get St. Augustine's chapel," said "Mr. Zero," "but always I have been put off. Several years ago I attended a conference of high church officials and we talked over the matter. They said it was a matter for the vestrymen to decide. It was to have been laid before the vestrymen. That's the last I ever heard of it."

The regiment, 500 strong, was being organized today at "The Tub," the five-cent eating house which "Mr. Zero" maintains at 33 St. Mark's place.

The men are to march, according to "Mr Zero's" plan two by two, down Eighth street to Broadway and down Broadway to Wall Street and thence into Broad street. There are to be two main orders. One will be "halt." The other "Heel to Curb." Any man who disobeys orders or becomes other than a "silent demonstrator," will be taken in hand by one of the ex-service men, there being one ex-service man to every twenty men. Those of the jobless who have hats will remove them in front of the vestrymen's offices.

Mr. Zero said that he would say to the vestrymen:

"Can you eat or sleep in peace as caretakers of Christ's property on the sacred anniversary, while your brothers are shelterless and starving?"

"If they tell me they want to hold a conference, I will say to them, "if there should be a fire or flood in Trinity church would you wait for a conference to save it?"

houses in that year. Withdrawals in 1924 amount to about 1,900,000 gallons." Haynes said.

"This great source of liquor for the illicit traffic virtually has been closed."

About all the drinking fraternity now has to meet its demands are synthetic liquors and moonshine, according to Haynes who added that this variety of beverages alcoholics is "pure poison."

Good Label Means Nothing.

Haynes said the 99 percent of the liquor confiscated by Federal and state agents in the last year has been of a quality highly dangerous for human consumption.

Reports from New York and other wet centers that Scotch is selling for $1 a quart were derided.

"A good label doesn't mean a good drink" Haynes said.

Even the liquor that is now smuggled in is bad, according to Haynes.

Big Insurance

of our insurance companies and of our banking institutions are invested in railway securities, it is encouraging that the railroads are to be helped rather than hindred hereafter in their effort to obtain working capital on the one hand, and on the other to increase their transportation facilities for the benefit of the farmer and shipper of merchandise.

The insurance companies recognize the importance of prosperity among our farmers, and are rendering a valuable service in investing in carefully selected farm mortgages.

Improvement in financial conditions abroad will be helpful to us here because prosperity there will benefit us here, whereas disaster would react upon us sooner or later in many injurious ways.

Whereat Alexander smiled wanly but did not appear to believe the turkey in jail would be as enjoyable as even hot owl in his grandmother's dining room.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Irregular price movements in the industrial stocks featured the early trading in the stock market today. There were additional evidence of selling for profit-taking in the oils and industrials, thought this selling pressure did not appear to be as heavy as in the first hour on Monday. The high priced industrial stocks were buoyed up by pool support, to which was added a certain amount of buying for short covering But the rank and file of industrial shares which did not have this especial support were compelled to drop down into slightly lower price levels and the same was true of the railroad shares.

Speculation over the rumored melon-cutting in American Can was brought to an end, for the time being, at least, by the action of the directors in declaring an extra cash dividend of $2 a share, and making no comment on the matter of stock dividend. Another railroad was added to the ranks of the dividend payers when the directors of the New York, Ontario and Western road ordered the payment of $1.00 a share to holders of the common stock.

General Electric continued in the first hour the rally which was in progress at the close of Monday's heavy session. The stock sold above 298 where it encountered heavy profit-taking and declined a few points. American Can dropped back on fairly heavy selling in this period, as also did the Pan-American oils which were the leaders in the oil stocks in recent sessions. Cast Iron Pipe was practically unchanged. Philadelphia and Reading Coal encountered heavy selling and lost more than a point.

Ervin Tice Faces Jail Unless he Pays $400 Fine

Ervin Tice of Riley avenue is being held by the police today, pending commitment to the county jail for his failure to pay a $400 balance on a $500 fine, assessed by Mayor Brown for violation of the prohibition law.

Tice was arrested at his home by Patrolman McFarland, Turnkey Cline and Special Officer Dawson last night, after they confiscated a half gallon of corn whisky in a garage. He claims to know nothing about the liquor.

Mayor Brown said at noon today that the new charge of possessing liquor would not be pressed against the prisoner, but that he would be required to pay the balance remaining of his original fine. On the first violation, Tice was liberated upon his promise to pay the fine in installments.

Pope Pius XI Able To be up Following Influenza Attack

ROME, Dec. 23. — Pope Pius XI, who had been suffering from a slight attack of influenza, was able to be up today. At 12 o'clock he received Christmas greetings from the cardinals.

The influenza was of a very light form, physicians at the vatican said. It was not believed that the condition of the pope would prevent his opening the jubilee doors of the holy year celebration Christmas eve. The illness was checked, it was said, by his having taken to his bed at once when he felt indisposed.

Notables have already arrived for the holy year celebration. Among the prominent visitors are Cardinal Mercier, the famous Belgian cardinal; Princesses Josephine and Stephanie of Belgium and the Duke of Norfolk of England, all of whom will occupy princes' boxes. Other notables include Prince Christopher of Greece, the Dowager Queen Olga and Prince Andrew and his daughters.

are entitled to rent for a portion of the building, as the municipal officers have permitted the establishment of a club room on the third floor of the building, formerly used by the city engineer. It is alleged by the trustees that this room is heated and lighted at the expense of the city.

Mayor's Rejoinder.

Mayor Brown, admitting today that the building was erected jointly by the city and the township, asserted that the municipal government has always paid for the up-keep, painting and repairing the structure. He added that the police had always taken care of township prisoners in the city jail without cost to the township.

"If the township is willing to reimburse teh city for one-half of the money which has been spent in keeping the building in condition and maintaining it, we will give consideration to their demands for a rental fee," declared the mayor. He said that this would amount to far more than the township's $2,000 investment.

As the structure occupies a stone foundation on city property, it automatically becomes the property of the city, the mayor claimed. This ruling the chief executive declared, was made recently by the state auditor when the township trustees pressed their claim for a rental fee.

The trustees have not determined their future action. It was stated by one member of the board that the attorney general will be asked to make a ruling as to whether or not the township has a right to demand rentals from property in which they hold an interest even though it occupies city-owned land.

WOMAN WILL ADMINISTER OATH OF OFFICE TO GOV. AL E. SMITH

Chair Used in Executive Chamber by De Witt Clinton More Than Century Ago Will Occupy Conspicuous Place on Inaugural Platform.

ALBANY. Dec.—In at least two respects the inauguration of Governor Alfred E. Smith for the third time as Chief Executive of New York State will be the most unusual in the history of the state.

It will mark the first time that a woman has ever administered the oath of office to the Governor. This will be performed by Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, of Syracuse, secretary of state elect, and the first woman to ever hold such an important post in the state service.

The chair used in the executive chamber by DeWitt Clinton while governor of the state more than a century age will occupy a conspicuous place on the inaugural platform in the Assembly chamber on New Year's Day.

For the last eighty years this chair has been in the State Museum at Albany. Its use at the coming inaugural was suggested by Dr. John M. Clarke, director of the museum.

The old chair has a most interesting history. Its appearance is far from being impressive. It is an ordidinary plain, black, slat-back affair with a writing arm attached. Faded old-time stencils of apples, pears and peaches adorn the slats. It occupied a place in the Eexecutive chamber up to 1841 ,when Governor William H. Seward turned it over to the museum.

Preparations for the inaugural are being rapidly completed by Secretary of State Hamilton, it being the custom for the outgoing secretary to complete the program and then turn the actual handling of the ceremony over to the incoming secretary.

Governor Smith will be virtually surrounded by Republicans when he takes the oath of office.

Military Law Excuses Swearing at Sergeant; Ruling Handed Down

LONDON—British military law recognizes that soldiers are liable to outbursts of profanity, and when a private of the First Royal Dragoons was charged at an Aldershot court martial with using insubordinate language toward a sergeant he was acquitted on the ground that the expressions he used were "common barrack room language."

"A soldier frequently uses violent language, which is a mere outburst of momentary irritation or excitement, without at all intending to be insubordinate," says the British military law manual.

The committee re-organized at New Cumberland by electing the following officers: chairman, W. D. Johnston, superintendent of Butler district schools; treasurer, H. O. Miller, superintendent of Hancock county schools; secretary, Mrs. J. A. Todd, chairman of the county league.

Superintendent Osborne and Superintendent Henderson of New Cumberland schools look after the fund in their respective districts.

Urge Farm Agent Appointment.

WOMAN WILL ADMINISTER OATH OF OFFICE TO GOV. AL E. SMITH

Chair Used in Executive Chamber by De Witt Clinton More Than Century Ago Will Occupy Conspicuous Place on Inaugural Platform.

ALBANY, Dec.—In at least two respects the inauguration of Governor Alfred E. Smith for the third time as Chief Executive of New York State will be the most unusual in the history of the state.

It will mark the first time that a woman has ever administered the oath of office to the Governor. This will be performed by Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, of Syracuse, secretary of state elect, and the first woman to ever hold such an important post in the state service.

The chair used in the executive chamber by DeWitt Clinton while governor of the state more than a century age will occupy a conspicuous place on the inaugural platform in the Assembly chamber on New Year's Day.

For the last eighty years this chair has been in the State Museum at Albany. Its use at the coming inaugural was suggested by Dr. John M. Clarke, director of the museum.

The old chair has a most interesting history. Its appearance is far from being impressive. It is an ordinary plain, black, slat-back affair with a writing arm attached. Faded old-time stencils of apples, pears and peaches adorn the slats. It occupied a place in the Eexecutive chamber up to 1841 ,when Governor William H. Seward turned it over to the museum.

Preparations for the inaugural are being rapidly completed by Secretary of State Hamilton, it being the custom for the outgoing secretary to complete the program and then turn the actual handling of the ceremony over to the incoming secretary.

Governor Smith will be virtually surrounded by Republicans when he takes the oath of office.

Collects Big Damages.

CHICAGO—Mrs. Fanny Meyer was granted $10,499 damages in Superior Judge W. N. Gemmell's court for injuries received when the banister gave way and she fell down the stairs of her former home in May, 1923.

Mrs. Meyer sued Bertram N. Winston, wealthy real estate man, the owner of the building, for $30,000.

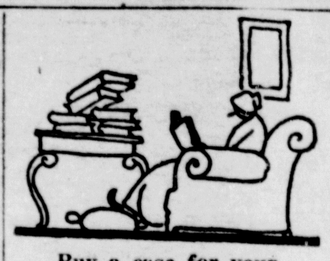

Settlement Made.

OTTAWA, O., Dec.—Final settlement of the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad for farm lands condemned for use in laying new tracks at Columbus Grove has been made, it was announced today.

Military Law Excuses Swearing at Sergeant; Ruling Handed Down

LONDON—British military law recognizes that soldiers are liable to outbursts of profanity, and when a private of the First Royal Dragoons was charged at an Aldershot court martial with using insubordinate language toward a sergeant he was acquitted on the ground that the expressions he used were "common barrack room language."

"A soldier frequently uses violent language, which is a mere outburst of momentary irritation or excitement, without at all intending to be insubordinate," says the British military law manual.

Guard Against Christmas Fires

Three fires, all in homes, marked the arrival of the cold wave and the ushering in of Yuletide week in East Liverpool.

As readers of Dickens' "Christmas Carol," recalling what an abandoned killjoy was old Scrooge, know, the approaching holiday season can sadden as well as gladden the heart Which it shall do is a decision that rests with everyone to make for himself, for the conversion of Yuletide from an occasion of joy to one of sorrow is most often brought about by fire, and fire of a kind that is traceable chiefly to that great American nemesis, Carelessness

The National Board of Fire Underwriters calls attention to the fact that, unfortunately, Christmas in nearly every locality is not the season of unmixed cheer it might be for the country's fire chiefs. Grim experience has taught Chief Thomas Bryan and his co-workers in the East Liverpool department to expect increased alarms, augmented property losses and, worst of all, injuries and fatalities, simply because some people will not be persuaded to practice ordinary caution.

Insurance companies point out that careless folk, in preparing for Santa's visit, set up trees unstably, instead of providing solid bases to prevent their toppling; they trim them with lighted candles, when there are available the safer (if properly installed) and far prettier electric light sets; they employ cotton and burnable tinsel instead of metal cuttings for "snow and ice" effects; they place candles in windows where communication of the flames to highly inflammable draperies is absurdly easy, when, if they wish to preserve the old custom, they might do so safely by substituting electric candles operated by small dry-batteries; they are unthinking in their use of matches and smoking material when close to trees and other decorations; they allow trees to remain in the house for days after Christmas until they grow dry as tinder; they permit Santa to bring cheap electric toys and playthings which require gas and gasoline for their operation; they—but the list is long, and two eyes, plus two minutes' thought, will serve to point out the rest of the Yuletide hazards, nearly every one of them strictly preventable.

Nor are hazards of Christmas confined solely to the home. Care is needed also to safeguard church and community celebrations. Santa's costume, for instance, can and certainly ought to be made at least partially fireproof, from cap to boots. Similarly protected, too, should be the clothing of children taking part in Christmas festivals.

Let's have the happiest of Christmas days. To our observance, let us invite Santa Claus, bringer of cheer; not Fire Demon, bearer of sorrow.

The Educational Boom

Education is certainly booming in this country, especially the higher education. Millionaires are pouring money into colleges as they formerly poured it into railroads, mines and factories.

The recent gifts of James B. Duke and George Eastman are merely the most spectacular of a deluge of similar gifts.

The colleges, universities, museums and other institutions benefitted are not at all coy about accepting money. They meet the givers more than half way. If it is true that never in history has such treasure been poured into education, it is truer still that never education had the nerve to ask for so much There seems to be hardly a college or university in America, of all the hundreds the country boasts, that is not engaged in an ambitious campaign for new buildings and larger endowment.

There is a new phase, too, in this demand for educational funds. It is the effort of cities to create universities of their own. City after city is seeking millions to enlarge a struggling young university or create a brand new one.

In nearly every case the effort is succeeding. The general public is in a liberal mood, and gives, like the multi-millionaire, according to its ability, for the advancement of learning.

If money can make culture, this should be the most cultured of nations in another generation or two.

A MODERN FUNERAL

The human race, its religious thought and ideas gradually become mixed as time passes. The funeral of Samuel Gompers illustrates it.

He was lowered into the grave to the ancient ritual of the Free Masons by officials of the St. Cecele lodge.

In New York city, at a preliminary service in the lodge of the Elks, Dr. Stephen Wise, rabbi of the Reformed Jewish church, intoned the Jewish ritual, more ancient than that of the Free Masons.

Across the street, in a great hall, crowds unable to enter the lodge, heard the funeral sermon by radio, strange mixture of ancient and modern.

And in Sleepy Hollow cemetery, Washington Irving's "Sleepy Hollow," Samuel Gompers' body lies close to the bodies of Andrew Carnegie, William Rockefeller, John D. Archbold. Scores of automobiles, state troops and mounted policemen escorted to the grave the body of the Jewish cigarmaker, born in England, whose life was spent building up labor in the United States.

THE AMAWALK TREE

An electric switch thrown by President Coolidge will cause a great public Christmas tree to shine forth at Washington, and, unlike millions of other Christmas trees, it will not be thrown into the street when Christmas is past, as a proof of American indifference to tree life.

"This national Christmas tree," a magnificent fir tree, perfectly formed, 30 feet high, carefully planted in the ground, is destined to grow years after year, used each year as a bigger and bigger national Christmas tree.

The tree was grown in the Amawalk nurseries, at Amawalk, N. Y., that institution producing the finest specimen trees grown in the United States, is managed by a young woman, Miss Evelyn W. Smith, daughter of the late Orlando Smith, well known to thousands of country newspaper editors in the United States as one of their best friends. They will be glad to hear that Major Smith's daughter devotes her life to growing the perfect trees that were her father's chief delight.

DYNAMITING A CATHEDRAL

The attempt at Puebla to dynamite the Mexican cathedral, most beautiful of all the ancient churches in Mexico, illustrates well the character of religious hatred, whether among those who savagely advocate a religion of those that oppose it.

Two bombs were found under the great altar, timed to explode at a time when hundreds of women and children were in the cathedral celebrating the Feast of Guadalue. Of all hatreds, religious hate is most vicious and cruel.

OUR BEST FLYING SCHOOL

One hundred and fifty thousand dollars have been cut from the appropriation of the air mail for this year. It would have been wiser to add a million instead of cutting off one hundred and fifty thousand.

The air mail is destined to earn its cost a thousand times over. It is self-supporting now. Most important of all the postoffice flying forces is the natural, the best possible training school for American flying men.

The men that constantly cross the continent, its rivers, lakes and mountain ranges are the men that can be relied upon if war ever comes, to take care of enemy fliers.

Secretary Hughes welcomes most cordially Tauneo Sudiara, new ambassador from Japan. In an official statement, unusual in such cases, the secretary of state refers to the honor done the United States by the Mikado in sending here representatives of two most distinguished Japanese families.

The public will applaud Mr. Hughes' friendly words to Japan, and regret the action of Representative Britten, of Illinois, introducing a resolution suggesting a conference "of the white nations bordering on the Pacific" for the purpose of promoting white supremacy.

One white nation, the United States, will attend to that matter, so far as our side of the Pacific is concerned, and our Pacific interests around Hawaii and the Philippines.

The rest does not concern us. The Canadians could not join with us in any action if they chose, without the approval of the British empire.

Two thousand years ago, there was a great fight for the supremacy of the Mediterranean. The Romans won, thanks partly to old Cato, who knew enough to keep warning them. The Carthaginians lost, and with that loss vanished the possibility of Semitic domination in Europe.

A somewhat similar situation may come up in the Pacific, which is to the world now what the Meriterranean used to be. The struggle for domination may come between the west coast of the United States and Asia. But it is a long distance off.

President Coolidge intends that this nation shall be properly protected in the air, where future wars will be fought. A few thousand well built, powerful, swift flying machines, with the right kind of pilots, earning their keep in peace times, and ready for war if it comes, will keep war away.

But the country must have the flying machines. Not a few, but at least twice as many as any other nation possesses. This country is twice as big, in wealth and area, as any nation with power sufficient to threaten it now. And it is at least twice as well worth defending.

Perhaps no man elected to a seat in the national house of representatives for the first times is more widely known than Brooks Fletcher, of Marion, O., Democrat. For years he was owner and editor of a newspaper rival of the late President Harding's Marion Star and a warm personal friend of Mr. Harding.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—Nikita Balieff and his "Chauve Souris" are on their way to New York, stopping for a few weeks in London.

Balieff, with his bland face and naivete, still sends London audiences into paroxysms of laughter, and the performance which he has arranged is as good, if not better, than the first production which he brought out of his Moscow cellar to astonish the theatrical worlds of two continents.

The new lord mayor of London is undergoing a tremendous ordeal. For the first eight weeks of his administration here is not a single day on which he has neither a banquet nor a luncheon engagement. To offset this his physicians have ordered that he shall exercise daily; therefore he may be seen almost any day walking along the Thames embankment, between the Mansion House and the houses of parliament. Although the lord mayor is himself a wine merchant, occasionally on his daily walk he slips into the Thames embankment entrance of the Savoy to sample one of Harry Craddock's American cocktails.

Queen Mary's memory for faces is remarkable, and a slight slip which she made the other day only serves to emphasize it. When she was doing her Christmas shopping in Bond street she passed Mrs. Robert Cabell, of Richmon, Va., who made the usual salutation. The queen acknowledged it, but did not show any trace of recognition.

The day after, however, Mrs. Cabell, who is staying at the Savoy, received a note from the queen's lady in waiting saying that "her majesty had immediately afterward remembered meeting Mrs. Cabell on Mrs. Urban Broughton's yacht, the Sapphire, at Cowes, during the summer, and would have liked to have had a chat with her."

Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of Labor's ex-premier, is striving to persuade her father to take her on his coming trip to Jamaica and Panama. Ishbel is back at the little Hampstead cottage, running the small household for her father with the same tact and efficiency with which she ran the huge establishment at No. 10 Downing street.

The Duchess of York confessed that she is such a poor shot that she dare not make the same promise.

DINNER STORIES

There are occasional doubts in the minds of the elders of the Smith family as to the quickness of Bobby's wits, but there has never been any doubt that a lesson once learend by him, however slowly, is forever afterwards remembered.

"Won't you shake hands with me, Bobby?" asked one of his sister's admirers; but Bobby hung back.

"I don't care to," he said, with terrible distinctness.

"Don't you like me?" asked the unwise visitor.

"No, I don't," replied Bobby, and there was a shocked chorus from the family.

"Bobby," said his mother, reproachfully, as she withdrew him from the public gaze, "why did you say such a rude thing to Mr. Jones?"

"Because, mother," said her wriggling prisoner, "I got spanked last week for not telling the truth; I'm not taking any risks again."

Olga Nethersole tells the following story concerning a little maid she employed. One day, while dressing for the theater, there was an unusually heavy downpour of rain, and Miss Nethersole, peering out of the window at the overflowing gutters, remarked:

"Why, Lizzie, it is almost like the flood!"

"Flood, miss?" queried the girl.

"Yes, the flood. Noah, you know and the ark."

"I never have no time to look at the papers, miss," explained the girl apologetically.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Another cluster of midnight clubs is opening in the Frantic Forties. When a dozen or more were padlocked wisemen of Broadway declared this was the end and ducked to the intimate candle lighted cellars of cheer.

Manhattan's reform comes in spasms. Those who know say that a political expediency caused the closing of the biggest chain in town a year ago. Despite the flagrant violations there was not an indictment against the men who ruled the night world.

After resting awhile—along the Riviera and at Monte Carlo, by the way—they are now back at the old stand and in the past month a dozen bedizened and ornate establishments have opened to those who go in for high life.

The only change is they are now nameless. No electric signs flaunt this club and that. Instead they are known merely by their street numbers. They are manipulated by a board of dummy directors which may include waiter and bus boys.

The fact that they may be closed at any moment does not prevent lavish decorations. It is said if they can remain open a month and do a rushing business they make a huge profit on their investment. One man is said to have made $3,000 on a club that was open only three weeks.

It is, of course, the old story of Broadway dying hard. It will not accept the inevitable. The lure is the hundreds who have been able to leave mediocre jobs and by selling illicit hooch buy country homes and limousines.

Broadway is always looking for easy money. It considers work as an invention for the boobery. So long as none of the violators are sent to jail they will not worry. And so the dance goes on.

A new story around the Lamb's. A country darkey on the job for the first day fell down an elevator shaft eight floors and lay there. After an hour his employer missed him and began hunting around. He peered in the open elevator door and way down in the darkness thought he saw a human form.

"That you down there, Sam?" he called.

"Yes, boss. I'm here all right. But if you all is coming down look out. That first step's a brute."

She sat alone in a half darkened hotel lobby long after midnight—a wisp of a girl. Finally a house detective approached her. It was no place for one of her years at such an hour. And she told her story. She was waiting for a man whose name is prominent. In a beaded bag she carried a pearl handled pistol. It was the old story of one of the thousands of girl children left stranded on the sands of pleasure.

The old wheeze, "How's business; you're a liar?" seems to apply aptly to the theater these days. Even the speculators are running on short rations. It is one of those unaccountable slumps that come now and then. And one man's guess is just as good as another as to the reason. Poor plays, is mine.

There is a certain playwright for whom I have long cherished an aversion. Not that it matters and this may not be the proper place to air personal dislikes. But a few days ago he went out of his way learned of it through others. The point is that most to do a very gracious and kindly thing for me. I of us go through life disliking people without real justification. It would be a pretty good epitaph, it seems to me, to have written truthfully on one's tomb: "He Never Hated Anyone."

There is only one fierce hatred I cannot quench. And that is for the man who poisoned a dog of mine nearly 30 years ago. The memory of that dog's terrible agony is as vivid today as it was then. And the poisoner in the guise of a sympathizer looked on. Cupyrighted, 1924, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

THE BUSINESS OF SPORT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Sport in the United states has grown to such proportions that it is the foundation for great industries. Primarily there is the business of presenting sporting events, those bringing the greatest financial returns being baseball and boxing. There is something in the human mind—especially, it seems in the American mind—which yearns toward physical contest when it is accompanied by skill. Every big prize fight held in the United States is attended by tens of thousands who crowd the arenas to see perhaps only a few minutes of struggle between skilled pugilists.

Ordinary baseball games are thronged by thousands, and when the world series comes the enthusiasts wait all night in line to be sure of admittance the continent to attend the spectacles.

Some baseball clubs are more successful than others, but in general it is a profitable business. Shares in the baseball clubs, which usually are corporations, are traded in on local exchanges just as shares in the United States Steel corporation or the Pennsylvania Railroad company are traded in on the New York stock exchange. In a good season dividends of substantial size are paid to stockholders and when a club wins a world series a regular melon is cut.

The approaches to fame in the pugilistic world are not so profitable, but when a puglist reaches the front rank he and the shrewd business men associated with him enjoy big profits. Men like Jack Dempsey have become very wealthy. Dempsey is against the champions, receiving only the short side of the purse, get rich returns. The promoters, managers and trainers share in the profits.

BUSINESS BACK OF SPORTS

Back of all this is another aspect of the well established businesses reap a large profit.

Hundreds of thousands of baseballs are used every year in this country. Some are worn out and many are lost, as every small boy knows. Some, still in good order, are auctioned off at benefit performances, bearing the autographs of famous players. There is a steady consumption.

A baseball is an ingenious bit of manufacture. The standard baseball has a cork center about the aged for 15 years. Surrounding this core is a quarquality. At this stage of manufacture, the baseball step in manufacture is the winding in coarse woolen yarn. This is done by machinery. Next, the ball is put in a machine which winds it with a finer grade woolen yarn. A third and finer strand then is woven about the ball, gradually building up the sphere. Finally a thin layer of cotton yarn is wound around it.

The woolen yarns used are selected from the finest grades and carefully tested. They produce the greatest amount of the baseball's resiliency, even more than the cork core, according to experts.

The final step is putting on the cover. This is of horsehide. The ordinary horse is the proud bearer of about a hundred potential baseball covers. Only certain portions of the hide are used.. These portions are put in a stamping or cutting machine. A shaped knife cuts out the cover in two pieces of equal size. At the same time the cutting operation is performed little points stamp holes around the edges for the stitches with which the cover is sewed on the ball.

About the only hand work on a baseball is the putting on of the covers. Each ball must have 216 stitches taken in it and these are done by hand. An expert workman can stitch on 60 covers in an eight-hour working day. The threads are double and waxed much like shoemakers' thread. About 12 feet of thread are used in each ball cover.

Balls form the principal item in the industry supplying the national game, but the other accoutrements make up an aggregate which takes hundreds of thousands of dollars a year from American pockets, the combined business forming a substantial item in the commerce of the country.

DATS NOT MADE OF WILLOW

Some curious anomalies are discovered in an inquiry into the nomenclature of baseball. For instance, the sporting writer frequently refers to the batsman as the wielder of the "willow." While baseball bats may at some time have been made of willow they seldom, if ever, are nowadays. The standard baseball bat is made of the finest, straight-grained ash, the same material used by the Indians for their bows and, earlier, by the English, for their longbows and quarterstaves.

The football, similarly, is invariably referred to as the "pigskin." As a matter of fact the standard football is made of cowhide. The basketball is also made of that material, while the pigskin is ignored in sporting paraphernalia, save for riding boots.

Punching bags and boxing gloves are made of sheepskin, which has a softer and more pliant surface. Use of horsehide or cowhide in the manufacture of boxing gloves would leave the contestants much more badly marked up than sheepskin.

These are some of the major products of the sporting goods industry. Thousands of baseballs are used each year by the major leagues, and the balls used on the sandlots and in the minor leagues are many more. To this must be added baseball gloves and mitts, catchers' masks, umpires' protectors, football uniforms, with all the strange armour of leather and moleskin that the modern football player dons. Then there are such games as lacrosse, hockey, handball, the track sports, including putting the shot, pole-vaulting, hurdling, sprinting, swimming, canoeing and literally dozens of others. Each sport has its own particular quota of equipment. Each year the expenditures of the American youth in this field increase and each year the industry grows bigger. Tennis and golf absorb hundreds of thousands of dollars a year in equipment.

The American people apparently have concluded that the millions of dollars they put into sporting goods each year must pay dividends in the form of good times and good health. Otherwise the expenditure would not continue and increase the way it does. It is all a part of that great branch of American commerce, the sporting goods business. Whether you buy a pair of dice or an eight-oared rowing shell, you are adding to the total of this big industry. There probably is no other industry from which people are more sure that they get their money's worth.

Guard Against Christmas Fires

Three fires, all in homes, marked the arrival of the cold wave and the ushering in of Yuletide week in East Liverpool.

As readers of Dickens' "Christmas Carol," recalling what an abandoned killjoy was old Scrooge, know, the approaching holiday season can sadden as well as gladden the heart Which it shall do is a decision that rests with everyone to make for himself, for the conversion of Yuletide from an occasion of joy to one of sorrow is most often brought about by fire, and fire of a kind that is traceable chiefly to that great American nemesis, Carelessness

The National Board of Fire Underwriters calls attention to the fact that, unfortunately, Christmas in nearly every locality is not the season of unmixed cheer it might be for the country's fire chiefs. Grim experience has taught Chief Thomas Bryan and his co-workers in the East Liverpool department to expect increased alarms, augmented property losses and, worst of all, injuries and fatalities, simply because some people will not be persuaded to practice ordinary caution.

Insurance companies point out that careless folk, in preparing for Santa's visit, set up trees unstably, instead of providing solid bases to prevent their toppling; they trim them with lighted candles, when there are available the safer (if properly installed) and far prettier electric light sets; they employ cotton and burnable tinsel instead of metal cuttings for "snow and ice" effects; they place candles in windows where communication of the flames to highly inflammable draperies is absurdly easy, when, if they wish to preserve the old custom, they might do so safely by substituting electric candles operated by small dry-batteries; they are unthinking in their use of matches and smoking material when close to trees and other decorations; they allow trees to remain in the house for days after Christmas until they grow dry as tinder; they permit Santa to bring cheap electric toys and playthings which require gas and gasoline for their operation; they—but the list is long, and two eyes, plus two minutes' thought, will serve to point out the rest of the Yuletide hazards, nearly every one of them strictly preventable.

Nor are hazards of Christmas confined solely to the home. Care is needed also to safeguard church and community celebrations. Santa's costume, for instance, can and certainly ought to be made at least partially fireproof, from cap to boots. Similarly protected, too, should be the clothing of children taking part in Christmas festivals.

Let's have the happiest of Christmas days. To our observance, let us invite Santa Claus, bringer of cheer; not Fire Demon, bearer of sorrow.

The Educational Boom

Education is certainly booming in this country, especially the higher education. Millionaires are pouring money into colleges as they formerly poured it into railroads, mines and factories.

The recent gifts of James B. Duke and George Eastman are merely the most spectacular of a deluge of similar gifts.

The colleges, universities, museums and other institutions benefitted are not at all coy about accepting money. They meet the givers more than half way. If it is true that never in history has such treasure been poured into education, it is truer still that never education had the nerve to ask for so much There seems to be hardly a college or university in America, of all the hundreds the country boasts, that is not engaged in an ambitious campaign for new buildings and larger endowment.

There is a new phase, too, in this demand for educational funds. It is the effort of cities to create universities of their own. City after city is seeking millions to enlarge a struggling young university or create a brand new one.

In nearly every case the effort is succeeding. The general public is in a liberal mood, and gives, like the multi-millionaire, according to its ability, for the advancement of learning.

If money can make culture, this should be the most cultured of nations in another generation or two.

A MODERN FUNERAL

The human race, its religious thought and ideas gradually become mixed as time passes. The funeral of Samuel Gompers illustrates it.

He was lowered into the grave to the ancient ritual of the Free Masons by officials of the St. Cecele lodge.

In New York city, at a preliminary service in the lodge of the Elks, Dr. Stephen Wise, rabbi of the Reformed Jewish church, intoned the Jewish ritual, more ancient than that of the Free Masons.

Across the street, in a great hall, crowds unable to enter the lodge, heard the funeral sermon by radio, strange mixture of ancient and modern.

And in Sleepy Hollow cemetery, Washington Irving's "Sleepy Hollow," Samuel Gompers' body lies close to the bodies of Andrew Carnegie, William Rockefeller, John D. Archbold. Scores of automobiles, state troops and mounted policemen escorted to the grave the body of the Jewish cigarmaker, born in England, whose life was spent building up labor in the United States.

THE AMAWALK TREE

An electric switch thrown by President Coolidge will cause a great public Christmas tree to shine forth at Washington, and, unlike millions of other Christmas trees, it will not be thrown into the street when Christmas is past, as a proof of American indifference to tree life.

"This national Christmas tree," a magnificent fir tree, perfectly formed, 30 feet high, carefully planted in the ground, is destined to grow years after year, used each year as a bigger and bigger national Christmas tree.

The tree was grown in the Amawalk nurseries, at Amawalk, N. Y., that institution producing the finest specimen trees grown in the United States, is managed by a young woman, Miss Evelyn W. Smith, daughter of the late Orlando Smith, well known to thousands of country newspaper editors in the United States as one of their best friends. They will be glad to hear that Major Smith's daughter devotes her life to growing the perfect trees that were her father's chief delight.

DYNAMITING A CATHEDRAL

The attempt at Puebla to dynamite the Mexican cathedral, most beautiful of all the ancient churches in Mexico, illustrates well the character of religious hatred, whether among those who savagely advocate a religion of those that oppose it.

Two bombs were found under the great altar, timed to explode at a time when hundreds of women and children were in the cathedral celebrating the Feast of Guadalue. Of all hatreds, religious hate is most vicious and cruel.

OUR BEST FLYING SCHOOL

One hundred and fifty thousand dollars have been cut from the appropriation of the air mail for this year. It would have been wiser to add a million instead of cutting off one hundred and fifty thousand.

The air mail is destined to earn its cost a thousand times over. It is self-supporting now. Most important of all the postoffice flying forces is the natural, the best possible training school for American flying men.

The men that constantly cross the continent, its rivers, lakes and mountain ranges are the men that can be relied upon if war ever comes, to take care of enemy fliers.

Secretary Hughes welcomes most cordially Tauneo Sudiara, new ambassador from Japan. In an official statement, unusual in such cases, the secretary of state refers to the honor done the United States by the Mikado in sending here representatives of two most distinguished Japanese families.

After resting awhile—along the Riviera and at Monte Carlo, by the way—they are now back at the old stand and in the past month a dozen bedizened and ornate establishments have opened to those who go in for high life.

The only change is they are now nameless. No electric signs flaunt this club and that. Instead they are known merely by their street numbers. They are manipulated by a board of dummy directors which may include waiter and bus boys.

The fact that they may be closed at any moment does not prevent lavish decorations. It is said if they can remain open a month and do a rushing business they make a huge profit on their investment. One man is said to have made $3,000 on a club that was open only three weeks.

It is, of course, the old story of Broadway dying hard. It will not accept the inevitable. The lure is the hundreds who have been able to leave mediocre jobs and by selling illicit hooch buy country homes and limousines.

Broadway is always looking for easy money. It considers work as an invention for the boobery. So long as none of the violators are sent to jail they will not worry. And so the dance goes on.

A new story around the Lamb's. A country darkey on the job for the first day fell down an elevator shaft eight floors and lay there. After an hour his employer missed him and began hunting around. He peered in the open elevator door and way down in the darkness thought he saw a human form.

"That you down there, Sam?" he called.

"Yes, boss. I'm here all right. But if you all is coming down look out. That first step's a brute."

She sat alone in a half darkened hotel lobby long after midnight—a wisp of a girl. Finally a house detective approached her. It was no place for one of her years at such an hour. And she told her story. She was waiting for a man whose name is prominent. In a beaded bag she carried a pearl handled pistol. It was the old story of one of the thousands of girl children left stranded on the sands of pleasure.

The old wheeze, "How's business; you're a liar?" seems to apply aptly to the theater these days. Even the speculators are running on short rations. It is one of those unaccountable slumps that come now and then. And one man's guess is just as good as another as to the reason. Poor plays, is mine.

There is a certain playwright for whom I have long cherished an aversion. Not that it matters and this may not be the proper place to air personal dislikes. But a few days ago he went out of his way learned of it through others. The point is that most to do a very gracious and kindly thing for me. I of us go through life disliking people without real justification. It would be a pretty good epitaph, it seems to me, to have written truthfully on one's tomb: "He Never Hated Anyone."

There is only one fierce hatred I cannot quench. And that is for the man who poisoned a dog of mine nearly 30 years ago. The memory of that dog's terrible agony is as vivid today as it was then. And the poisoner in the guise of a sympathizer looked on. Cupyrighted, 1924, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

THE BUSINESS OF SPORT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Sport in the United states has grown to such proportions that it is the foundation for great industries. Primarily there is the business of presenting sporting events, those bringing the greatest financial returns being baseball and boxing. There is something in the human mind—especially, it seems in the American mind—which yearns toward physical contest when it is accompanied by skill. Every big prize fight held in the United States is attended by tens of thousands who crowd the arenas to see perhaps only a few minutes of struggle between skilled pugilists.

Ordinary baseball games are thronged by thousands, and when the world series comes the enthusiasts wait all night in line to be sure of admittance the continent to attend the spectacles.

Some baseball clubs are more successful than others, but in general it is a profitable business. Shares in the baseball clubs, which usually are corporations, are traded in on local exchanges just as shares in the United States Steel corporation or the Pennsylvania Railroad company are traded in on the New York stock exchange. In a good season dividends of substantial size are paid to stockholders and when a club wins a world series a regular melon is cut.

The approaches to fame in the pugilistic world are not so profitable, but when a puglist reaches the front rank he and the shrewd business men associated with him enjoy big profits. Men like Jack Dempsey have become very wealthy. Dempsey is against the champions, receiving only the short side of the purse, get rich returns. The promoters, managers and trainers share in the profits.

BUSINESS BACK OF SPORTS

Back of all this is another aspect of the well established businesses reap a large profit.

Hundreds of thousands of baseballs are used every year in this country. Some are worn out and many are lost, as every small boy knows. Some, still in good order, are auctioned off at benefit performances, bearing the autographs of famous players. There is a steady consumption.

A baseball is an ingenious bit of manufacture. The standard baseball has a cork center about the aged for 15 years. Surrounding this core is a quarquality. At this stage of manufacture, the baseball step in manufacture is the winding in coarse woolen yarn. This is done by machinery. Next, the ball is put in a machine which winds it with a finer grade woolen yarn. A third and finer strand then is woven about the ball, gradually building up the sphere. Finally a thin layer of cotton yarn is wound around it.

The woolen yarns used are selected from the finest grades and carefully tested. They produce the greatest amount of the baseball's resiliency, even more than the cork core, according to experts.

The final step is putting on the cover. This is of horsehide. The ordinary horse is the proud bearer of about a hundred potential baseball covers. Only certain portions of the hide are used. These portions are put in a stamping or cutting machine. A shaped knife cuts out the cover in two pieces of equal size. At the same time the cutting operation is performed little points stamp holes around the edges for the stitches with which the cover is sewed on the ball.

About the only hand work on a baseball is the putting on of the covers. Each ball must have 216 stitches taken in it and these are done by hand. An expert workman can stitch on 60 covers in an eight-hour working day. The threads are double and waxed much like shoemakers' thread. About 12 feet of thread are used in each ball cover.

Balls form the principal item in the industry supplying the national game, but the other accoutrements make up an aggregate which takes hundreds of thousands of dollars a year from American pockets, the combined business forming a substantial item in the commerce of the country.

BATS NOT MADE OF WILLOW

Some curious anomalies are discovered in an inquiry into the nomenclature of baseball. For instance, the sporting writer frequently refers to the batsman as the wielder of the "willow." While baseball bats may at some time have been made of willow they seldom, if ever, are nowadays. The standard baseball bat is made of the finest, straight-grained ash, the same material used by the Indians for their bows and, earlier, by the English, for their longbows and quarterstaves.

The football, similarly, is invariably referred to as the "pigskin." As a matter of fact the standard football is made of cowhide. The basketball is also made of that material, while the pigskin is ignored in sporting paraphernalia, save for riding boots.

Punching bags and boxing gloves are made of sheepskin, which has a softer and more pliant surface. Use of horsehide or cowhide in the manufacture of boxing gloves would leave the contestants much more badly marked up than sheepskin.

These are some of the major products of the sporting goods industry. Thousands of baseballs are used each year by the major leagues, and the balls used on the sandlots and in the minor leagues are many more. To this must be added baseball gloves and mitts, catchers' masks, umpires' protectors, football uniforms, with all the strange armour of leather and moleskin that the modern football player dons. Then there are such games as lacrosse, hockey, handball, the track sports, including putting the shot, pole-vaulting, hurdling, sprinting, swimming, canoeing and literally dozens of others. Each sport has its own particular quota of equipment. Each year the expenditures of the American youth in this field increase and each year the industry grows bigger. Tennis and golf absorb hundreds of thousands of dollars a year in equipment.

The American people apparently have concluded that the millions of dollars they put into sporting goods each year must pay dividends in the form of good times and good health. Otherwise the expenditure would not continue and increase the way it does. It is all a part of that great branch of American commerce, the sporting goods business. Whether you buy a pair of dice or an eight-oared rowing shell, you are adding to the total of this big industry. There probably is no other industry from which people are more sure that they get their money's worth.

Guard Against Christmas Fires

Three fires, all in homes, marked the arrival of the cold wave and the ushering in of Yuletide week in East Liverpool.

As readers of Dickens' "Christmas Carol," recalling what an abandoned killjoy was old Scrooge, know, the approaching holiday season can sadden as well as gladden the heart Which it shall do is a decision that rests with everyone to make for himself, for the conversion of Yuletide from an occasion of joy to one of sorrow is most often brought about by fire, and fire of a kind that is traceable chiefly to that great American nemesis, Carelessness

The National Board of Fire Underwriters calls attention to the fact that, unfortunately, Christmas in nearly every locality is not the season of unmixed cheer it might be for the country's fire chiefs. Grim experience has taught Chief Thomas Bryan and his co-workers in the East Liverpool department to expect increased alarms, augmented property losses and, worst of all, injuries and fatalities, simply because some people will not be persuaded to practice ordinary caution.

Insurance companies point out that careless folk, in preparing for Santa's visit, set up trees unstably, instead of providing solid bases to prevent their toppling; they trim them with lighted candles, when there are available the safer (if properly installed) and far prettier electric light sets; they employ cotton and burnable tinsel instead of metal cuttings for "snow and ice" effects; they place candles in windows where communication of the flames to highly inflammable draperies is absurdly easy, when, if they wish to preserve the old custom, they might do so safely by substituting electric candles operated by small dry-batteries; they are unthinking in their use of matches and smoking material when close to trees and other decorations; they allow trees to remain in the house for days after Christmas until they grow dry as tinder; they permit Santa to bring cheap electric toys and playthings which require gas and gasoline for their operation; they—but the list is long, and two eyes, plus two minutes' thought, will serve to point out the rest of the Yuletide hazards, nearly every one of them strictly preventable.

Nor are hazards of Christmas confined solely to the home. Care is needed also to safeguard church and community celebrations. Santa's costume, for instance, can and certainly ought to be made at least partially fireproof, from cap to boots. Similarly protected, too, should be the clothing of children taking part in Christmas festivals.

Let's have the happiest of Christmas days. To our observance, let us invite Santa Claus, bringer of cheer; not Fire Demon, bearer of sorrow.

The Educational Boom

Education is certainly booming in this country, especially the higher education. Millionaires are pouring money into colleges as they formerly poured it into railroads, mines and factories.

The recent gifts of James B. Duke and George Eastman are merely the most spectacular of a deluge of similar gifts.

The colleges, universities, museums and other institutions benefitted are not at all coy about accepting money. They meet the givers more than half way. If it is true that never in history has such treasure been poured into education, it is truer still that never education had the nerve to ask for so much There seems to be hardly a college or university in America, of all the hundreds the country boasts, that is not engaged in an ambitious campaign for new buildings and larger endowment.

There is a new phase, too, in this demand for educational funds. It is the effort of cities to create universities of their own. City after city is seeking millions to enlarge a struggling young university or create a brand new one.

In nearly every case the effort is succeeding. The general public is in a liberal mood, and gives, like the multi-millionaire, according to its ability, for the advancement of learning.

If money can make culture, this should be the most cultured of nations in another generation or two.

A MODERN FUNERAL

The human race, its religious thought and ideas gradually become mixed as time passes. The funeral of Samuel Gompers illustrates it.

He was lowered into the grave to the ancient ritual of the Free Masons by officials of the St. Cecele lodge.

In New York city, at a preliminary service in the lodge of the Elks, Dr. Stephen Wise, rabbi of the Reformed Jewish church, intoned the Jewish ritual, more ancient than that of the Free Masons.

Across the street, in a great hall, crowds unable to enter the lodge, heard the funeral sermon by radio, strange mixture of ancient and modern.

And in Sleepy Hollow cemetery, Washington Irving's "Sleepy Hollow," Samuel Gompers' body lies close to the bodies of Andrew Carnegie, William Rockefeller, John D. Archbold. Scores of automobiles, state troops and mounted policemen escorted to the grave the body of the Jewish cigarmaker, born in England, whose life was spent building up labor in the United States.

THE AMAWALK TREE

An electric switch thrown by President Coolidge will cause a great public Christmas tree to shine forth at Washington, and, unlike millions of other Christmas trees, it will not be thrown into the street when Christmas is past, as a proof of American indifference to tree life.

"This national Christmas tree," a magnificent fir tree, perfectly formed, 30 feet high, carefully planted in the ground, is destined to grow years after year, used each year as a bigger and bigger national Christmas tree.

The tree was grown in the Amawalk nurseries, at Amawalk, N. Y., that institution producing the finest specimen trees grown in the United States, is managed by a young woman, Miss Evelyn W. Smith, daughter of the late Orlando Smith, well known to thousands of country newspaper editors in the United States as one of their best friends. They will be glad to hear that Major Smith's daughter devotes her life to growing the perfect trees that were her father's chief delight.

DYNAMITING A CATHEDRAL

The attempt at Puebla to dynamite the Mexican cathedral, most beautiful of all the ancient churches in Mexico, illustrates well the character of religious hatred, whether among those who savagely advocate a religion of those that oppose it.

Two bombs were found under the great altar, timed to explode at a time when hundreds of women and children were in the cathedral celebrating the Feast of Guadalue. Of all hatreds, religious hate is most vicious and cruel.

OUR BEST FLYING SCHOOL

One hundred and fifty thousand dollars have been cut from the appropriation of the air mail for this year. It would have been wiser to add a million instead of cutting off one hundred and fifty thousand.

The air mail is destined to earn its cost a thousand times over. It is self-supporting now. Most important of all the postoffice flying forces is the natural, the best possible training school for American flying men.

The men that constantly cross the continent, its rivers, lakes and mountain ranges are the men that can be relied upon if war ever comes, to take care of enemy fliers.

Secretary Hughes welcomes most cordially Tauneo Sudiara, new ambassador from Japan. In an official statement, unusual in such cases, the secretary of state refers to the honor done the United States by the Mikado in sending here representatives of two most distinguished Japanese families.

The public will applaud Mr. Hughes' friendly words to Japan, and regret the action of Representative Britten, of Illinois, introducing a resolution suggesting a conference "of the white nations bordering on the Pacific" for the purpose of promoting white supremacy.

One white nation, the United States, will attend to that matter, so far as our side of the Pacific is concerned, and our Pacific interests around Hawaii and the Philippines.

The rest does not concern us. The Canadians could not join with us in any action if they chose, without the approval of the British empire.

Two thousand years ago, there was a great fight for the supremacy of the Mediterranean. The Romans won, thanks partly to old Cato, who knew enough to keep warning them. The Carthaginians lost, and with that loss vanished the possibility of Semitic domination in Europe.

A somewhat similar situation may come up in the Pacific, which is to the world now what the Meriterranean used to be. The struggle for domination may come between the west coast of the United States and Asia. But it is a long distance off.

President Coolidge intends that this nation shall be properly protected in the air, where future wars will be fought. A few thousand well built, powerful, swift flying machines, with the right kind of pilots, earning their keep in peace times, and ready for war if it comes, will keep war away.

But the country must have the flying machines. Not a few, but at least twice as many as any other nation possesses. This country is twice as big, in wealth and area, as any nation with power sufficient to threaten it now. And it is at least twice as well worth defending.

WHO'S WHO

THOMAS BROOKS FLETCHER.

Perhaps no man elected to a seat in the national house of representatives for the first times is more widely known than Brooks Fletcher, of Marion, O., Democrat. For years he was owner and editor of a newspaper rival of the late President Harding's Marion Star and a warm personal friend of Mr. Harding.

THOS. B. FLETCHER

Fletcher will represent President Harding's own congressional district, the Eighth.

Fletcher is a Chautauqua lecturer who has delivered more than 6,000 addresses. Nearly 2,000,000 people have paid to hear him, nearly that many more have heard him for nothing.

Fletcher is a fighter. A native of Carroll county, O., his life story reads like a page plucked from fiction — farm hand, laborer in the steel mills, salesman in a hardware store, waiter in a restaurant, winner of honors as an athlete in college, honor man in oratory, chosen to represent his college in inter-collegiate contests, newspaper circulation solicitor, then advertising director of that newspaper, later reporter, then business manager and editor and finally owner.

The congressman-elect is a scholar, business man, organizer and a leader of men, educator and author.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—Nikita Balieff and his "Chauve Souris" are on their way to New York, stopping for a few weeks in London.

Balieff, with his bland face and naivete, still sends London audiences into paroxysms of laughter, and the performance which he has arranged is as good, if not better, than the first production which he brought out of his Moscow cellar to astonish the theatrical worlds of two continents.

The new lord mayor of London is undergoing a tremendous ordeal. For the first eight weeks of his administration here is not a single day on which he has neither a banquet nor a luncheon engagement. To offset this his physicians have ordered that he shall exercise daily; therefore he may be seen almost any day walking along the Thames embankment, between the Mansion House and the houses of parliament. Although the lord mayor is himself a wine merchant, occasionally on his daily walk he slips into the Thames embankment entrance of the Savoy to sample one of Harry Craddock's American cocktails.

Queen Mary's memory for faces is remarkable, and a slight slip which she made the other day only serves to emphasize it. When she was doing her Christmas shopping in Bond street she passed Mrs. Robert Cabell, of Richmon, Va., who made the usual salutation. The queen acknowledged it, but did not show any trace of recognition.

The day after, however, Mrs. Cabell, who is staying at the Savoy, received a note from the queen's lady in waiting saying that "her majesty had immediately afterward remembered meeting Mrs. Cabell on Mrs. Urban Broughton's yacht, the Sapphire, at Cowes, during the summer, and would have liked to have had a chat with her."

Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of Labor's ex-premier, is striving to persuade her father to take her on his coming trip to Jamaica and Panama. Ramsay MacDonald believes in travel—his younger son is now making a rapid tour of the world—but he thinks that Ishbel's place is at home. Ishbel is back at the little Hampstead cottage, running the small household for her father with the same tact and efficiency with which she ran the huge establishment at No. 10 Downing street.

A. G. Widdon, an American big game hunter, presented the Duke of York with a pair of fine sporting guns, in preparation for his trip to East Africa. The Duchess of York was given a light rifle by Widdon. The Duke of York has promised him the mounted head of the first animal to fall to one of the new guns. The Duchess of York confessed that she is such a poor shot that she dare not make the same promise.

White hair with a bluish tinge is attracting attention in London. Its effect, particularly on young women, is remarkable. The young countess of Castle-Stewart is one of the latest devotees. Only three men in Europe are said to know the secret of how the hair is given this striking tinge.

DINNER STORIES

There are occasional doubts in the minds of the elders of the Smith family as to the quickness of Bobby's wits, but there has never been any doubt that a lesson once learend by him, however slowly, is forever afterwards remembered.

"Won't you shake hands with me, Bobby?" asked one of his sister's admirers; but Bobby hung back.

"I don't care to," he said, with terrible distinctness.

"Don't you like me?" asked the unwise visitor.

"No, I don't," replied Bobby, and there was a shocked chorus from the family.

"Bobby," said his mother, reproachfully, as she withdrew him from the public gaze, "why did you say such a rude thing to Mr. Jones?"

"Because, mother," said her wriggling prisoner, "I got spanked last week for not telling the truth; I'm not taking any risks again."

Olga Nethersole tells the following story concerning a little maid she employed. One day, while dressing for the theater, there was an unusually heavy downpour of rain, and Miss Nethersole, peering out of the window at the overflowing gutters, remarked:

"Why, Lizzie, it is almost like the flood!"

"Flood, miss?" queried the girl.

"Yes, the flood. Noah, you know and the ark."

"I never have no time to look at the papers, miss," explained the girl apologetically.

Punching bags and boxing gloves are made of sheepskin, which has a softer and more pliant surface. Use of horsehide or cowhide in the manufacture of boxing gloves would leave the contestants much more badly marked up than sheepskin.

These are some of the major products of the sporting goods industry. Thousands of baseballs are used each year by the major leagues, and the balls used on the sandlots and in the minor leagues are many more. To this must be added baseball gloves and mitts, catchers' masks, umpires' protectors, football uniforms, with all the strange armour of leather and moleskin that the modern football player dons. Then there are such games as lacrosse, hockey, handball, the track sports, including putting the shot, pole-vaulting, hurdling, sprinting, swimming, canoeing and literally dozens of others. Each sport has its own particular quota of equipment. Each year the expenditures of the American youth in this field increase and each year the industry grows bigger. Tennis and golf absorb hundreds of thousands of dollars a year in equipment.

The American people apparently have concluded that the millions of dollars they put into sporting goods each year must pay dividends in the form of good times and good health. Otherwise the expenditure would not continue and increase the way it does. It is all a part of that great branch of American commerce, the sporting goods business. Whether you buy a pair of dice or an eight-oared rowing shell, you are adding to the total of this big industry. There probably is no other industry from which people are more sure that they get their money's worth.

RAISE IN YELLOW CREEK ROAD FUND

Under the new reappraisement plan, Yellow Creek township will receive next year $2,601.82 for its township road fund which is a two-mill levy on a valuation of $1,300,910.

In past years the township has been receiving $2,332.40, on a valuation of $1,126,200. The increase is $369.42.

For several years the township has been collecting a two-mill levy for the improvement of the Wellsville-Salineville road in that township but it is still shy a sufficient amount to pay the difference in the grading of the road. In all, the township had about $11,000 to put into the job, and the state and county is to make up the difference.

As the trustees of Yellow Creek township are still obliged to pay the county $5,800 on the grading job in progress their check for $6,000 having been forwarded some months ago to apply on their part of the contract, a bond issue for the remainder or about $5,800 will follow immediately.

This bond issue will be taken care of by the two-mill levy which will continue as in the past.

IMPROVE ROAD BELOW TORONTO

Jefferson county commissioners have been notified by L. A. Boulay, state highways director, that their application for the improvement of the Ohio river road from the north corporation line of Steubenville to the southern end of the new brick pavement near King's crossing, has been approved for the new program of state road building.

The announcement means the improvement of the connecting link between Steubenville's new and smooth pavement and the new Toronto road and the elimination of the rough road between the city and King's crossing. This strip which will be improved is one of the roughest sections of road in this section of the county and is the worst section in the improved or paved portion of the Ohio river road.

The notice of approval is another step in the plan formulated last spring and summer whereby the city and county officials will co-operate in improving this important piece of highway, forming one of the principal means of entry into the city. The city will, if the plan is followed, improve the rough stretch between the car barns and the city limits and the completed project will provide a smooth highway between Steubenville and Toronto.

Mrs. Crumbley Hostess.

Mrs. Gerald Crumbley was hostess to members of the Five Hundred club last evening at her home in Fourteenth street, the affair being the annual Christmas party of the organization.

The home was appropriately decorated, a color scheme of red and green being carried out. An exchange of gifts featured the evening program. Five hundred was the chief diversion. Honors were won by Mrs. William Phipps and Mrs. Lester Donnelly.

At the conclusion of the affair refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her sister, Miss Nora Hickey of East Liverpool.

The next meeting of the club will be held in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Louise Porter in Commerce street.

XMAS PROGRAM IN M. P. CHURCH

Two attractive Christmas services were held in the First Methodist Protestant church Sunday. The program rendered at the morning services by the Sunday school was brought to a climax in a short playlet stressing the significance of a "white Christmas," and was made more effective by the tasty decorations in white, including a manger filled with hay. A unique feature by the artful arrangement of miniature figures presenting an impressive object lesson. Offerings made by the classes were deposited in a white cradle supported by two little girls. After the program, gifts were exchanged and the school was given their annual treat.

The evening service consisted of a story and song arrangement entiled, "The Star of Glory" which was presented by the choir. Miss Lillian Davis gave the story composed by Mabel Rosemon. The music consisted of solos, duets, quartet numbers and chorus selections. Mrs. Oliver Cummings, at the organ, gave an improvised arrangement of Christmas melodies as the opening number.

KIWANIANS HEAR REV. R. W. USTICK

Wellsville Kiwanis club members were scheduled to hear an address by Rev. R. W. Ustick, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, and past president of the club, at their noon luncheon meeting today in the Riverview hotel.

Rev. Ustick's subject was to be "A Christmas Message."

Q. Everywhere I go I see copies of the "Blue Boy." Why is it so wonderful? J. A. S.

A. The "Blue Boy" is one of the most important paintings by Gainsborough, who was an eminent English painter. This portrait was painted when the artist was at the height of his fame, and regarded as one of the greatest masters of the English school of portraiture. It is said to have been painted to refute an argument of Sir Joshua Reynolds that blue was a color unsuitable for the main light of unsuitable for the main light of a work.

Q. What kind of wood resists decay the longest under ground? W. V. O.

A. The Forest Products Laboratory says that osage orange and black locust are the most durable woods which grow in commercial quantities in the United States and can be expected to resist decay in the ground longer than other native species These woods are not very plentiful, however, and are not available in sufficient quantities to be very widely used, so woods like the cedars, cypress and redwood are very commonly used where resistance to decay is desired. Woods of low durability can be made durable by preservative treatment with coal tar cresote. An effective treatment of this kind will make quickly rotting woods last as long or longer than the most durable woods can be expected to last without treatment.

Q. With what European countries has the United States no diplomatic relations? J. V. H.

A. The United States has no diplomatic relations with the following large countries: Soviet Russia, Abyssinia and Riak There are a number of smaller principalities which the United States does not recognize. Where is Ifni? C. S. W.

A. It is a colonial possession of Spain in Africa.

Q. What is the correct pronunciation of "Los Angeles?" T. O. M.

A. The naming of the ZR-3 brings up this question again. There are three recognized pronunciations: los an gel es (with o long); los an jel es (with o short); and the Spanish los an ha las (o long, a broad, second a trifle shorter, third a long).

Q. Is there any limit to the time that an English Parliament may stay in power without re-election? J. M. B.

RAISE IN YELLOW CREEK ROAD FUND

Under the new reappraisement plan, Yellow Creek township will receive next year $2,601.82 for its township road fund which is a two-mill levy on a valuation of $1,300,910.

In past years the township has been receiving $2,332.40, on a valuation of $1,126,200. The increase is $369.42.

For several years the township has been collecting a two-mill levy for the improvement of the Wellsville-Salineville road in that township but it is still shy a sufficient amount to pay the difference in the grading of the road. In all, the township had about $11,000 to put into the job, and the state and county is to make up the difference.

As the trustees of Yellow Creek township are still obliged to pay the county $5,800 on the grading job in progress their check for $6,000 having been forwarded some months ago to apply on their part of the contract, a bond issue for the remainder or about $5,800 will follow immediately.

This bond issue will be taken care of by the two-mill levy which will continue as in the past.

IMPROVE ROAD BELOW TORONTO

Jefferson county commissioners have been notified by L. A. Boulay, state highways director, that their application for the improvement of the Ohio river road from the north corporation line of Steubenville to the southern end of the new brick pavement near King's crossing, has been approved for the new program of state road building.

The announcement means the improvement of the connecting link between Steubenville's new and smooth pavement and the new Toronto road and the elimination of the rough road between the city and King's crossing. This strip which will be improved is one of the roughest sections of road in this section of the county and is the worst section in the improved or paved portion of the Ohio river road.

The notice of approval is another step in the plan formulated last spring and summer whereby the city and county officials will co-operate in improving this important piece of highway, forming one of the principal means of entry into the city. The city will, if the plan is followed, improve the rough stretch between the car barns and the city limits and the completed project will provide a smooth highway between Steubenville and Toronto.

Mrs. Crumbley Hostess.

Mrs. Gerald Crumbley was hostess to members of the Five Hundred club last evening at her home in Fourteenth street, the affair being the annual Christmas party of the organization.

The home was appropriately decorated, a color scheme of red and green being carried out. An exchange of gifts featured the evening program. Five hundred was the chief diversion. Honors were won by Mrs. William Phipps and Mrs. Lester Donnelly.

At the conclusion of the affair refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her sister, Miss Nora Hickey of East Liverpool.

The next meeting of the club will be held in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Louise Porter in Commerce street.

XMAS PROGRAM IN M. P. CHURCH

Two attractive Christmas services were held in the First Methodist Protestant church Sunday. The program rendered at the morning services by the Sunday school was brought to a climax in a short playlet stressing the significance of a "white Christmas," and was made more effective by the tasty decorations in white, including a manger filled with hay. A unique feature by the artful arrangement of miniature figures presenting an impressive object lesson. Offerings made by the classes were deposited in a white cradle supported by two little girls. After the program, gifts were exchanged and the school was given their annual treat.

The evening service consisted of a story and song arrangement entitled, "The Star of Glory" which was presented by the choir. Miss Lillian Davis gave the story composed by Mabel Rosemon. The music consisted of solos, duets, quartet numbers and chorus selections. Mrs. Oliver Cummings, at the organ, gave an improvised arrangement of Christmas melodies as the opening number.

KIWANIANS HEAR REV. R. W. USTICK

Wellsville Kiwanis club members were scheduled to hear an address by Rev. R. W. Ustick, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, and past president of the club, at their noon luncheon meeting today in the Riverview hotel.

Rev. Ustick's subject was to be "A Christmas Message."

BRIDE STOLEN FROM SPOUSE LOVES ANOTHER

Spurns American Whom She Married Against Her Will.

KIDNAPERS' PLOT

Welcomes Rash Act of Her Bulgarian Romeo.

SOFIA, Dec.—"I don't want the American. I want my George, with whom I am now."

Thus ran the telegram of a modern Juliet to her parents, at Kustendil, who thus learned to their bewilderment that their daughter had been kidnapped from her husband, "the American," on their way to Sofia, the night they were married, while they were en route to the United States, the present home of Damian Gheorgieff, the husband.

The story of the new Romeo and Juliet, now repeated in this part of the globe, is a short one. The parents of charming Nadya, well-to-do folk, of the old town of Kustendil, wouldn't listen to her entreaties that she be allowed to marry her childhood sweetheart, George Kolaroff, a local state official, whose glaring defect, in the eyes of the parents, was that he was poor.

To complicate matters, there recently arrived from America, Damian Gheorgieff, with pockets full of dollars, which he spent lavishly in the town. He took a fancy to the beautiful daughter of the Kaparoffs, much to the delight of the parents, who gladly offered him the hand of their Nadya.

Nadya protested, but in vain; and one day before she could resist, she was married to a man she scarcely knew and for whom she cared not at all.

It was a sumptuous wedding, for the "American millionaire," as Damian was called, gave away all the money that was necessary and made generous presents to many particularly to the bride and her parents.

Many friends gathered at the station to bid farewell to the newlyweds that evening. Only Nadya knew that her real sweetheart, George, with two of his comrades, were hiding in a freight car of the same train.

At a small station, en route to Sofia, Nadya and her husband left the train to have a cup of coffee. She was suddenly seized and thrust into a carriage, which was driven away rapidly into the darkness, leaving an excited and protesting husband on the station platform.

Police were notified, but Nadya was missing for three days until she herself informed her parents and the police that she was with her own George, that she belonged to him and that she considered her marriage null and void, since the ceremony was performed against her wishes.

The couple gave themselves up and were escorted back to Kustendil, where the conduct of Nadya's parents in the case is being investigated.

At the Kustendil station they were greeted by a throng of admirers, who yelled in unison, "Long live Nadya and her love!"

Evening dress is optional at the theatre, but is compulsory at the cabaret in London.

DEFIANCE, O.—Harken, ye maidens, whose locks are shorn, to the voice of student debaters. The pendulum of fashion is swinging back. Long tresses, hanging about the knees, are now much to be desired over those that stop short just below the ears.

This is the argument by which two male debators at Defiance college, Thomas White and Carl Dille, arguing for long hair, won over Misses Hazel Perry and Lela Imoberstag, who defended the shingle bob, the "King Tut," the "sweetheart," "Buster Brown," "pineapple,' and any other brand of close-cropping that may have been devised.

TUBERCULIN TESTS BOOSTS VALUE OF COUNTY CATTLE

Statistics Show Only 2,178 Reactors Out of 24,394 Head Examined by State and Federal Agents — Wool Shipments Heavy During Year.

It has just been disclosed that 3,512 herds of cattle have been tested for tuberculosis in Columbiana, and of the 24,394 head tested there have been culled 2,178 reactors, every head of which has been shipped to slaughter.

During 1923 there were 476 herds tested, which included 3,781 head, and from which 265 reactors were found.

Testing for tuberculosis in cattle under the area plan was started August 6, 1923, under the direction of Dr. E. E. Stoner, of Salem, a state veterinarian who was placed in charge of the Colubiana county test work, following an active campaign on the part of the Columbiana County Farm bureau.

Owners of cattle throughout the test paid 25 cents per head for all cattle tested, and this money was used for the purchase of ear tags and also the transportation of the tester, and also for the payment of those men who have been engaged to superintended the disinfection of barns following the test.

It is recorded that after Dr. Stoner worked lone handed for 13 months in this county, the state and federal department of agriculture sent 11 additional testers into the county, during the latter part of the summer, and on October 25 the testing of all herds in the county was finished.

During this year alone there were 3,036 herds tested, including 20,613 head, and 1,913 reactors were found. With 476 herds tested last year, the record shows 3,512 herd tested, and these were located in each of the 18 townships of the county.

As a result of the test it is claimed by state authorities that the value of the cattle remaining on the farms of this county have been increased from $10 to $20 per head, and on this basis the cattle owners have added between $200,000 and $400,000 to the value of their cattle.

All of the tuberculin cattle found in this county was shipped to the Cleveland market through the agency of the Columbiana Live Stock company, of which E. Y. Gamble, of Salem, is president, and Lloyd Farmer, of Leetonnia, is secretary. Throughout the fiscal year this company shipped 116 cars of cattle to the Pittsburgh and Cleveland markets, a total of 2,160,930 pounds having rolled from 13 shipping stations as follows:

	Pounds
East Palestine	122,460
E. Rochester and Summitville	30,754
East Rochester	238,689
Summitville	25,278
East Liverpool	66,740
Columbiana	90,385
Salem	680,435
Homeworth	339,416
Lisbon	153,315
Kensington	162,938
Beloit	89,570
Wellsville	78,200
Garfield	192,950
Total	2,160,930

According to George Copeland, president of the Columbiana County Sheep and Wool Growers' association, sheep growers during the past year shipped "The value the breeders are getting 51,000 pounds of wool co-operatively. through grading is worth while, as well as the increase in the price they receive for their wool," Mr. Copeland declared. "I have found that a number of wool growers who are getting better sheep because their wool has graded poor."

Secure Right of Way.

The Pennsylvania-Ohio Light and Power company has obtained a right of way for a pole line over the property of Anna Gosler, on the Leetonia-Lisbon road, for which she has received $350, according to an agreement that has just been filed for record.

Judgment by Default.

Judgment by default was taken in common pleas court in the case of the Washington Finance company, represented by Attorney Charles C. Connell, against J. D. Ferrall, of Leetonia, a druggist, for $247.67 on an action to recover the amount of a trade acceptance note. Execution was issued and served Monday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff George Wright.

TWO AGED MEN DIE AT COUNTY HOME

Two deaths occurred at the County Home this week, and as a result John M. Neal, superintendent of the institution, has so far been unable to ascertain relatives of the aged ones who have passed away.

James Clendenning, aged 73 years, who was received at the home February 2, last, died at 12:30 Sunday noon. He was received from East Liverpool, and efforts to find relatives there have proved of no avail.

John Dietz, aged 83, who was received at the home July 13, 1911, died at 7:15 Sunday evening. He also was from East Liverpool. His record shows that he was formerly engaged as a cooper and later was employed as a butcher in East Liverpool. It was said that he had a cousin in East Palestine, whom it was thought would claim the body. The body was still in the care of Mr. Neal Monday.

There are 117 inmates at the home, according to a report to the county commissioners Monday by Mr. Neal.

DINNERS FOR HOME, JAIL INMATES

Inmates of the county home will have all the roast chicken and "trimmings" they want Christmas day, declared Supt. John Neal Tuesday.

During the last few days the mail at the county home has been very heavy. Friends of the inmates have been sending tokens and Christmas cards to the men and women.

At the county jail, Sheriff Gomer Lewis proposes to serve "his boys," as he has called them, with roast pig and all that goes with such a meal, the sheriff announced Tuesday.

Mail for the prisoners at the county jail has been heavy during the last few days.

FARM LAND LEASED FOR OIL DRILLING

About 186 acres of farm land in Fairfield township have been leased within the last few days for oil and gas drilling purposes.

Clyde Yarian and others have leased 88 acres to H. H. Hyland, Jr., for this purpose. Hyland has agreed to give one-eighth royalty in all oil pumped, and also pay $150 per annum for each producing gas well.

Adam Frick, as trustee, has leased 98 acres to John Kuhns and others. The usual one-eighth royalty has been agreed to for the oil production, but a price of $200 per gas well has also been agreed to.

Set yourself straight on these

Bran facts!

If you eat bran it is because you seek relief from constipation and toxic poisoning!

To get the relief your physician will tell you that bran will give—you must be certain to get Kellogg's, BECAUSE it is ALL BRAN! That is the kind your physician intends you to eat.

You only delay positive relief when you eat foods with a partial bran content, because they can only help you in proportion to the amount of bran they contain! You haven't time to waste on 25 per cent or 50 per cent relief when you know that Kellogg's will give you 100 per cent relief BECAUSE IT IS ALL BRAN!

Every day's delay lets your condition become worse! Pills and cathartics can only aggravate distressing conditions. Part bran foods cannot permanently help you! They do not have the necessary bulk or roughage that makes ALL BRAN positive in its mechanical action! That is why Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a necessity!

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is GUARANTEED to give you permanent relief if you will eat two tablespoonfuls each day, or as much with each meal in chronic cases!

If you would realize how delicious Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is—cooked, krumbled and ready to eat—and what it means to your health—you would not lose a minute starting to eat it! All grocers sell Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the Red and Green package.

Kellogg's (Look for this signature W. K. Kellogg)

Statistics Show Only 2,178 Reactors Out of 24,394 Head Examined by State and Federal Agents — Wool Shipments Heavy During Year.

It has just been disclosed that 3,512 herds of cattle have been tested for tuberculosis in Columbiana, and of the 24,394 head tested there have been culled 2,178 reactors, every head of which has been shipped to slaughter.

During 1923 there were 476 herds tested, which included 3,781 head, and from which 265 reactors were found.

Testing for tuberculosis in cattle under the area plan was started August 6, 1923, under the direction of Dr. E. E. Stoner, of Salem, a state veterinarian who was placed in charge of the Colubiana county test work, following an active campaign on the part of the Columbiana County Farm Bureau.

Owners of cattle throughout the test paid 25 cents per head for all cattle tested, and this money was used for the purchase of ear tags and also the transportation of the tester, and also for the payment of those men who have been engaged to superintended the disinfection of barns following the test.

It is recorded that after Dr. Stoner worked lone handed for 13 months in this county, the state and federal department of agriculture sent 11 additional testers into the county, during the latter part of the summer, and on October 25 the testing of all herds in the county was finished.

During this year alone there were 3,036 herds tested, including 20,613 head, and 1,913 reactors were found. With 476 herds tested last year, the record shows 3,512 herd tested, and these were located in each of the 18 townships of the county.

As a result of the test it is claimed by state authorities that the value of the cattle remaining on the farms of this county have been increased from $10 to $20 per head, and on this basis the cattle owners have added between $200,000 and $400,000 to the value of their cattle.

All of the tuberculin cattle found in this county was shipped to the Cleveland market through the agency of the Columbiana Live Stock company, of which E. Y. Gamble, of Salem, is president, and Lloyd Farmer, of Leetonnia, is secretary. Throughout the fiscal year this company shipped 116 cars of cattle to the Pittsburgh and Cleveland markets, a total of 2,160,930 pounds having rolled from 13 shipping stations as follows:

	Pounds
East Palestine	122,460
E. Rochester and Summitville	30,754
East Rochester	238,689
Summitville	25,278
East Liverpool	66,740
Columbiana	90,385
Salem	680,435
Homeworth	339,416
Lisbon	153,315
Kensington	162,938
Beloit	89,570
Wellsville	78,200
Garfield	192,950
Total	2,160,930

According to George Copeland, president of the Columbiana County Sheep and Wool Growers' association, sheep growers during the past year shipped "The value the breeders are getting 51,000 pounds of wool co-operatively, through grading is worth while, as well as the increase in the price they receive for their wool," Mr. Copeland declared. "I have found that a number of wool growers who are getting better sheep because their wool has graded poor."

The Pennsylvania-Ohio Light and Power company has obtained a right of way for a pole line over the property of Anna Gosler, on the Leetonia-Lisbon road, for which she has received $350, according to an agreement that has just been filed for record.

Judgment by default was taken in common pleas court in the case of the Washington Finance company, represented by Attorney Charles C. Connell, against J. D. Ferrall, of Leetonia, a druggist, for $247.67 on an action to recover the amount of a trade acceptance note. Execution was issued and served Monday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff George Wright.

Set yourself straight on these
Bran facts!

If you eat bran it is because you seek relief from constipation and toxic poisoning!

To get the relief your physician will tell you that bran will give—you must be certain to get Kellogg's, BECAUSE it is ALL BRAN! That is the kind your physician intends you to eat.

You only delay positive relief when you eat foods with a partial bran content, because they can only help you in proportion to the amount of bran they contain! You haven't time to waste on 25 per cent or 50 per cent relief when you know that Kellogg's will give you 100 per cent relief BECAUSE IT IS ALL BRAN!

Every day's delay lets your condition become worse! Pills and cathartics can only aggravate distressing conditions. Part bran foods cannot permanently help you! They do not have the necessary bulk or roughage that makes ALL BRAN positive in its mechanical action! That is why Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a necessity!

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is GUARANTEED to give you permanent relief if you will eat two tablespoonfuls each day, or as much with each meal in chronic cases!

If you would realize how delicious Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is—cooked, krumbled and ready to eat—and what it means to your health—you would not lose a minute starting to eat it! All grocers sell Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the Red and Green package.

Kellogg's Look for this signature W. K. Kellogg

Statistics Show Only 2,178 Reactors Out of 24,394 Head Examined by State and Federal Agents — Wool Shipments Heavy During Year.

It has just been disclosed that 3,512 herds of cattle have been tested for tuberculosis in Columbiana, and of the 24,394 head tested there have been culled 2,178 reactors, every head of which has been shipped to slaughter.

During 1923 there were 476 herds tested, which included 3,781 head, and from which 265 reactors were found.

Testing for tuberculosis in cattle under the area plan was started August 6, 1923, under the direction of Dr. E. E. Stoner, of Salem, a state veterinarian who was placed in charge of the Colubiana county test work, following an active campaign on the part of the Columbiana County Farm bureau.

Owners of cattle throughout the test paid 25 cents per head for all cattle tested, and this money was used for the purchase of ear tags and also the transportation of the tester, and also for the payment of those men who have been engaged to superintended the disinfection of barns following the test.

It is recorded that after Dr. Stoner worked lone handed for 13 months in this county, the state and federal department of agriculture sent 11 additional testers into the county, during the latter part of the summer, and on October 25 the testing of all herds in the county was finished.

During this year alone there were 3,036 herds tested, including 20,613 head, and 1,913 reactors were found. With 476 herds tested last year, the record shows 3,512 herd tested, and these were located in each of the 18 townships of the county.

As a result of the test it is claimed by state authorities that the value of the cattle remaining on the farms of this county have been increased from $10 to $20 per head, and on this basis the cattle owners have added between $200,000 and $400,000 to the value of their cattle.

All of the tuberculin cattle found in this county was shipped to the Cleveland market through the agency of the Columbiana Live Stock company, of which E. Y. Gamble, of Salem, is president, and Lloyd Farmer, of Leetonnia, is secretary. Throughout the fiscal year this company shipped 116 cars of cattle to the Pittsburgh and Cleveland markets, a total of 2,160,930 pounds having rolled from 13 shipping stations as follows:

	Pounds
East Palestine	122,460
E. Rochester and Summitville	30,754

Kensington	162,938
Beloit	89,570
Wellsville	78,200
Garfield	192,950
Total	2,160,930

According to George Copeland, president of the Columbiana County Sheep and Wool Growers' association, sheep growers during the past year shipped 51,000 pounds of wool co-operatively.

"The value the breeders are getting through grading is worth while, as well as the increase in the price they receive for their wool," Mr. Copeland declared. "I have found that a number of wool growers who are getting better sheep because their wool has graded poor."

TODAY'S RECIPES.

Sweet Potatoes—Pare and cook until done, then mash, season and add a generous portion of chopped English walnuts and mix thoroughly. Place in casserole, cover top with marshmallows, then place in oven until slightly browned.

Stewed Apples—Pare and quarter apples and before they begin to cook add a few tiny red peppermint candies and sugar sufficient to sweeten. Simmer clowly and when done the apples will have taken on a beautiful pink tinge and delightful flavor from the candies. Place in an attractive dish and sprinkle chopped nuts over the top. These can also be served in individual dishes topped with the nuts and whipped cream. Apples served in this way are delicious.

Cranberry Salad—Take one pint cranberries, 3-4 cup celery diced, 1-3 cup nut meats, 1½ cups water, 1 cup sugar, salt and ½ envelope of gelatin. Cook the cranberries in one cup water about twenty minutes. Add sugar and cook five minutes longer. Add gelatin which has previously been dissolvde in ¼ cup cold water. After mixture begins to thicken add the nuts and celery and turn into a receptacle which has been rinsed in cold water, and chill. When firm, cut in squares, place whole nut meat on top of each, and serve on lettuce leaves with any preferred salad dressing.

Pot Roast—Take three or four pounds brisket of beef. Put in pot and brown or sear both sides. Add one pint boiling water. Cover and cook slowly for one hour. When half done, salt and pepper. Do not add any more water. There will be sufficient fat to finish. For gravy take two tablespoons of the fat, three tablespoons flour, one pint hot water, season with salt and pepper.

Cream of Corn Soup—Take one can corn, one pint hot water, one small onion. Put in sauce pan and let simmer twenty minutes. Put through sieve and add one pint milk. Blend together three tablespoons flour and three tablespoons butter, add the hot soup gradually and stir until thickened. Salt and pepper to taste. Serve at once.

Lemon Pie—Line a pie pan with crust, and have it extend one-half inch above edge to hold filling in place. Bake crust until slightly brown and pierce with fork to prevent wraping before baking. Filling—Take three tablespoons corn starch, one cup sugar. Mix and add one and one-half cups boiling water. Stir constantly and boil five minutes. Remove from fire. Add one tablespoon of butter, juice of one lemon and yolks of two eggs beaten and blended with a tablespoon o fthe cooked mixture. Put filling in crust and return to oven and bake until filling bubbles. Beat the two egg whites until stiff and dry. Add four tablespoons of sugar, a few drops of lemon juice and for an especial flavor, one-fourth teaspoon orange extract and one-fourth teaspoon pineapple extract. Spread over pie and bake until slightly brown.

CEREAL TIME TABLE.

A well known cooking authority gives this table for cooking breakfast foods:

Steam-cooked and rolled oats—One cup, one and three-fourths cups water, 30 minutes.

Steamed-cooked and rolled rye and wheat: One cup, one and one-fourth cups water, 20 minutes.

Rice (steamed): One cup, two and three-fourths to thre and one-fourth cups water, 45 to 60 minutes (according to age of rice.)

Indian meal: One cup, three and one-half cups water, three hours.

Fine wheat breakfast foods: One cup, three and three-fourths cups water, 30 minutes.

Oatmeal (coarse): One cup, four cups water, one hour.

Suggestion.

A common pancake turner with the wooden handle removed is a handy kitchen utensil. It may be used to take up fried or poached eggs, to turn sausages and fritters, take cookies from the tins and handle a piece of pie that is too tender to hold together, and you will find many other uses for it.

Suggestions.

Cut bloomers for the little daughter long enough to permit an inch or inch and a half casing around the top, through which may be run elastic about half an inch wide. As the child grows open the casing, put a band on the top and button the bloomers to a "panty waist," having two rows of buttons around the waist. At first they button on the top row, later on the lower row. Everyday bloomers may be finished with a band which buttons on the outside of the leg, allowing the band to be adjusted for the difference between summer and winter underwear or for an increase in the child's weight.

If you let your rolling pin lie in the flour bin try this scheme. Take two pieces of white tape one-quarter inch wide and six inches long, bring two ends of each together and tack them at the back on the inside, near the top of the flour bin, one on each side. Rest handles of rolling pin in the loops. Beside the rolling pin run in a headless rail for the measuring cup to hang on.

"Madame Butterfly," Puccini Opera, to Be Presented Here

An exceptional treat is promised an East Liverpool audience on the occasion of the visit of the renowned San Carlo Grand Opera company on the night of Thursday, January 15th. Yielding to a general request Fortune Gallo, the popular and obliging impersario, has consented to substitute for the opera of "Rigeletto," originally selected for performance, "Madame Butterfly." The selection is especially interesting at the present time, owing to the recent death of the composer, Puccini. There was no work of his of which he was prouder than this, and it was given a special performance in Rome at the Costanzi theatre immediately following his death. It is, of course, of especial interest to audiences in this country, as two of the principal characters are American—Lieut. Pinkerton, of the U. S. Navy, and the Consul Sharpless, while the first few bars of "The Star Spangled Banner" are effectively employed by the composer at various stages of the opera.

The cast will include Elda Vettori, the distinguished dramatic soprano, who has been winning golden opinions from the public and high encomiums from the critics during the recent successful season of the San Carlo Company in New York. She will be supported by Givanni Rosich, a recent addition to the San Carlo forces, who has immediately stepped into the front rank as a lyric tenor, and as a graceful and effective actor. The role of the genial consul will be sung by Gieuseppe Interrante, one of the finest baritones now upon the operatic stage. The minor but none the less important and sympathetic character of Suzuki, Madame Butterfly's faithful attendant, will be in the more than competent hands of Ada Saleri, who is the possessor of a lovely mezzo-soprano voice.

As with all Fortune Gallo's productions, the opera will be handsomely mounted, the Japanese dresses and scenery being exceptionally picteresque. There will be a full orchestra with chorus under the masterful direction of Aldo Franchetti, one of the finest operatic conductors Italy has ever sent to America.

Lemon Pie—Line a pie pan with crust, and have it extend one-half inch above edge to hold filling in place. Bake crust until slightly brown and pierce with fork to prevent wraping before baking. Filling—Take three tablespoons corn starch, one cup sugar. Mix and add one and one-half cups boiling water. Stir constantly and boil five minutes. Remove from fire. Add one tablespoon of butter, juice of one lemon and yolks of two eggs beaten and blended with a tablespoon o fthe cooked mixture. Put filling in crust and return to oven and bake until filling bubbles. Beat the two egg whites until stiff and dry. Add four tablespoons of sugar, a few drops of lemon juice and for an especial flavor, one-fourth teaspoon orange extract and one-fourth teaspoon pineapple extract. Spread over pie and bake until slightly brown.

CEREAL TIME TABLE.

A well known cooking authority gives this table for cooking breakfast foods:

Steam-cooked and rolled oats—One cup, one and three-fourths cups water, 30 minutes.

Steamed-cooked and rolled rye and wheat: One cup, one and one-fourth cups water, 20 minutes.

Rice (steamed): One cup, two and three-fourths to thre and one-fourth cups water, 45 to 60 minutes (according to age of rice.)

Indian meal: One cup, three and one-half cups water, three hours.

Fine wheat breakfast foods: One cup, three and three-fourths cups water, 30 minutes.

Oatmeal (coarse): One cup, four cups water, one hour.

Suggestion.

A common pancake turner with the wooden handle removed is a handy kitchen utensil. It may be used to take up fried or poached eggs, to turn sausages and fritters, take cookies from the tins and handle a piece of pie that is too tender to hold together, and you will find many other uses for it.

Suggestions.

Cut bloomers for the little daughter long enough to permit an inch or inch and a half casing around the top, through which may be run elastic about half an inch wide. As the child grows open the casing, put a band on the top and button the bloomers to a "panty waist," having two rows of buttons around the waist. At first they button on the top row, later on the lower row. Everyday bloomers may be finished with a band which buttons on the outside of the leg, allowing the band to be adjusted for the difference between summer and winter underwear or for an increase in the child's weight.

If you let your rolling pin lie in the flour bin try this scheme. Take two pieces of white tape one-quarter inch wide and six inches long, bring two ends of each together and tack them at the back on the inside, near the top of the flour bin, one on each side. Rest handles of rolling pin in the loops. Beside the rolling pin run in a headless rail for the measuring cup to hang on.

"Madame Butterfly," Puccini Opera, to Be Presented Here

An exceptional treat is promised an East Liverpool audience on the occasion of the visit of the renowned San Carlo Grand Opera company on the night of Thursday, January 15th. Yielding to a general request Fortune Gallo, the popular and obliging impersario, has consented to substitute for the opera of "Rigeletto," originally selected for performance, "Madame Butterfly." The selection is especially interesting at the present time, owing to the recent death of the composer, Puccini. There was no work of his of which he was prouder than this, and it was given a special performance in Rome at the Costanzi theatre immediately following his death. It is, of course, of especial interest to audiences in this country, as two of the principal characters are American—Lieut. Pinkerton, of the U. S. Navy, and the Consul Sharpless, while the first few bars of "The Star Spangled Banner" are effectively employed by the composer at various stages of the opera.

The cast will include Elda Vettori, the distinguished dramatic soprano, who has been winning golden opinions from the public and high encomiums from the critics during the recent successful season of the San Carlo Company in New York. She will be supported by Givanni Rosich, a recent addition to the San Carlo forces, who has immediately stepped into the front rank as a lyric tenor, and as a graceful and effective actor. The role of the genial consul will be sung by Gieuseppe Interrante, one of the finest baritones now upon the operatic stage. The minor but none the less important and sympathetic character of Suzuki, Madame Butterfly's faithful attendant, will be in the more than competent hands of Ada Saleri, who is the possessor of a lovely mezzo-soprano voice.

As with all Fortune Gallo's productions, the opera will be handsomely mounted, the Japanese dresses and scenery being exceptionally picteresque. There will be a full orchestra with chorus under the masterful direction of Aldo Franchetti, one of the finest operatic conductors Italy has ever sent to America.

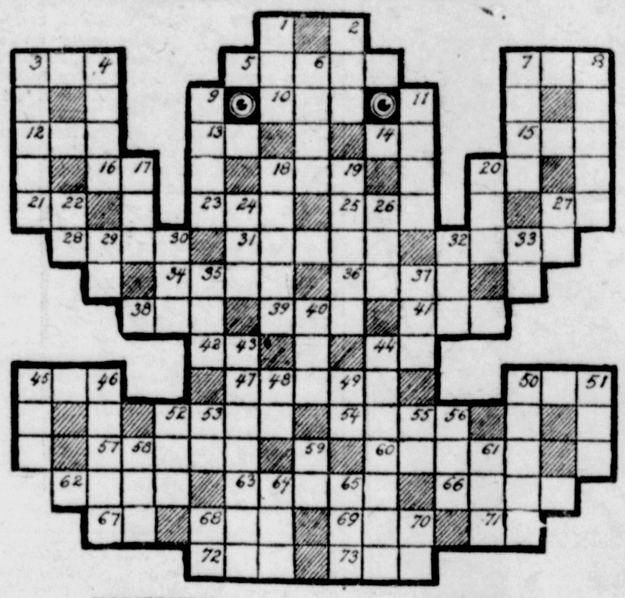

Baby airplanes were a feature of a recent air meet in France.

"Fast Set" Photoplay At Ceramic; Witty, Clever, Entertaining

Is there a limit beyond which a husband should not go to hold a lovely wife who is fascinated by a philanderer? This is the intriguing question that William de Mille's brilliant Paramount photoplay, "The Fast Set," based on Clara Beranger's adaptation of Frederick Lonsdale's tremendous stage success, "Spring Cleaning," raises and answers in eminently satisfactory fashion.

The audience, last night at the Ceramic theatre where the picture had its first local showing, was often thrilled, constantly interested and frequently amused during the projection of this screen play.

Witty, clever and entertaining, "The Fast Set" presents a new way of handling an old theme that revolves around the eternal triangle. It is a comedy of smart society life and the ation is motivated by a fine man who resorts to a clever and astonishing method of saving his wife from undesirable friends and of curing her infatuation for a notorious "great lover." From start to finish the picture is packed with sparkling humor and entertaining action.

Mr. de Mille's shrewd direction and deft treatment of the various startling situations go a long way toward lifting this photoplay into the ranks of the super-films. With his usual knack of picking just the right people for the respective roles, he has assembled a cast, every member of which gives an excellent performance. Betty Dexter, the husband-author; Adolphe Menjou, the philanderer; and Zasu Pitts, the social outcast, who becomes the amazing instrument that brings the erring wife to her senses.

SPANISH WOMAN HAS FOREGONE FOOD, SLEEP, DRINK FOUR YEARS

MADRID, Dec. — The remarkable case of a woman whom doctors declare has neither eaten nor drunk any thing nor had an hour's sleep for four years is exciting considerable interest among medical practitioners here.

She is a married woman, named Amelie Baranda and lives in the village of Monticille, Burgas Province.

According to the doctors' statements, she is kept alive solely by injections and the application of leeches.

In a report, which they were asked to submit to the Spanish Academy of Medicine, Doctors Guti, Errez and Pedo state that the patient has been under their care for four years, suffering from acute perigastric trouble. She was unable to keep down either food or drink of any description, and when she was seized with pain from four to six leeches were applied to lessen congestion.

Thed octors, in their report, state that this statement was approved by specialists who were called in for consultation, and add that, notwithstanding the woman is obviously fatigued, she is unable to sleep, and that they fear to administer sleeping draughts lest the variation of treatment may cause her to collapse. She is unable to converse freely after the injections.

Famous Spanish medical scientists are at a loss to explain the case other than that it must be a miracle.

Plant Leased.

BUCYRUS, O., Dec. — Plant of the Bucyrus Road Machinery company, in the hands of a receiver, has been leased by Joseph M. Conroy, who said he would operate the plant as a gray iron foundry for commercial work, employing about 50 men. At one time the plant employed 200 men.

It is a comedy of smart society life and the ation is motivated by a fine man who resorts to a clever and astonishing method of saving his wife from undesirable friends and of curing her infatuation for a notorious "great lover." From start to finish the picture is packed with sparkling humor and entertaining action.

Mr. de Mille's shrewd direction and deft treatment of the various startling situations go a long way toward lifting this photoplay into the ranks of the super-films. With his usual knack of picking just the right people for the respective roles, he has assembled a cast, every member of which gives an excellent performance. Betty Dexter, the husband-author; Adolphe Menjou, the philanderer; and Zasu Pitts, the social outcast, who becomes the amazing instrument that brings the erring wife to her senses.

SPANISH WOMAN HAS FOREGONE FOOD, SLEEP, DRINK FOUR YEARS

MADRID, Dec. — The remarkable case of a woman whom doctors declare has neither eaten nor drunk anything nor had an hour's sleep for four years is exciting considerable interest among medical practitioners here.

She is a married woman, named Amelie Baranda and lives in the village of Monticille, Burgas Province.

According to the doctors' statements, she is kept alive solely by injections and the application of leeches.

In a report, which they were asked to submit to the Spanish Academy of Medicine, Doctors Guti, Errez and Pedo state that the patient has been under their care for four years, suffering from acute perigastric trouble. She was unable to keep down either food or drink of any description, and when she was seized with pain from four to six leeches were applied to lessen congestion.

Thed octors, in their report, state that this statement was approved by specialists who were called in for consultation, and add that, notwithstanding the woman is obviously fatigued, she is unable to sleep, and that they fear to administer sleeping draughts lest the variation of treatment may cause her to collapse. She is unable to converse freely after the injections.

Famous Spanish medical scientists are at a loss to explain the case other than that it must be a miracle.

Plant Leased.

BUCYRUS, O., Dec.—Plant of the Bucyrus Road Machinery company, in the hands of a receiver, has been leased by Joseph M. Conroy, who said he would operate the plant as a gray iron foundry for commercial work, employing about 50 men. At one time the plant employed 200 men.

At 21 we have our fling;
At 31 for doctors to ring.

PARIS—Happy prison life was described in the French chamber when the prison department budget was voted. It was stated that there are no fewer than 61 prisons in France, in each of which there is only one man under detention.

The prisoner leads a life of comfort and comparative luxury. He does a few odd jobs for the head jailer and spends the rest of the day playing cards with the other jailers.

Canadian Butter Supplants American In Japanese Market

TOKYO—Canadian butter, according to officials of the department of agriculture, threatens to drive butter from the United States out of the Japanese market. Statistics show that imports of butter from western Canada are increasing rapidly, while there has been a corresponding decline in the amount of butter shipped to Japan from the United States.

England has too many doctors and the number of these entering the profession is mounting rapidly according to Sir Humphrey Rolleston, president of the Royal College of Physicians.

CHRISTMAS EVE SERVICES HERE

Rev. W. J. Sauer, rector of the Sacred Heart Catholic church, announced this morning that midnight mass would be celebrated in the church tomorrow evening beginning at 12 o'clock. The sermon, which will be appropriate to the occasion, will be delivered by the pastor. Communion will be distributed.

Services will be held in St. Matthew's Episcopal church starting at 1:45. Rev. F. C. Roberts, rector, will have charge of the services. Carols will be sung prior to the church meeting.

Fanciers Exhibiting.

Number of local chicken fanciers have exhibits at the Tri-State Poultry show which opened last evening in the Harris-Buick building, East Liverpool. It will come to a close Saturday evening.

PEN PRISONERS GIVEN PARDONS

While the Christmas pardon, which was issued annually to the oldest lifetermer in the prison in point of years of prison service, has been discontinued, executive clemency is still regarded as a possible Christmas gift among hundreds who live behind the walls at Moundsville.

There is no ceremony attending the Christmas gifts now issued by the state's chief executive. Pardons come through the usual channels, and the fortunate ones are liberated in ample time to reach their homes for the coming holiday.

Warden S. P. Smith stated last evening that half a dozen pardons have been issued during the past week, and the recipients have gone on their several ways. It is possible that one or two more will be released before Christmas Day. Names of the pardoned men have been withheld. Warden Smith said that he has the welfare of the men at heart, and each left with a promise to lead better lives.

SUNDAY SCHOOL XMAS PROGRAM

Nazarene Sunday school pupils will render the annual Christmas program at 7:30 this evening in the church. The usual treat will be distributed at the close of the exercises. Mothers whose children are members of the cradle roll department are urged to bring them to the entertainment.

Christmas Program.

Christmas entertainment will be given in St. Matthew's Episcopal church at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening. A program of music and recitations has been arranged by the committee in charge. Gifts will be distributed at the close of the exercises.

Work Progressing.

Follansbee's railroad station, now in process of erection, shows the result of steady work on the part of the contractors. The foundation complete, the shell of the first story and a part of the second give an appearance of the style and general appearances of the finished building. However, the contractors will not be under roof at the time of the winter's heaviest snows.

Seriously Ill.

James Shingleton, widely known resident, is reported seriously ill with pneumonia at his home near Rock Springs park.

Permanent Xmas Tree at Capital

A permanent community Christmas tree gives forth its cheery light in Washington this year for the first time. It has been erected in Sherman Monument Square, opposite the White House, a gift of the American Forestry Association and Miss Evelyn W. Smith, on whose farm it grew. Lieut. Col. C. O. Sherrill, president's aide, is helping plant it.

"Fast Set" Photoplay At Ceramic; Witty, Clever, Entertaining

Is there a limit beyond which a husband should not go to hold a lovely wife who is fascinated by a philander-er? This is the intriguing question that William de Mille's brilliant Paramount photoplay, "The Fast Set," based on Clara Beranger's adaptation of Frederick Lonsdale's tremendous stage success, "Spring Cleaning," raises and answers in eminently satisfactory fashion.

The audience, last night at the Ceramic theatre where the picture had its first local showing, was often thrilled, constantly interested and frequently amused during the projection of this screen play.

Witty, clever and entertaining, "The Fast Set" presents a new way of handling an old theme that revolves around the eternal triangle. It is a comedy of smart society life and the ation is motivated by a fine man who resorts to a clever and astonishing method of saving his wife from undesirable friends and of curing her infatuation for a notorious "great lover." From start to finish the picture is packed with sparkling humor and entertaining action.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND
BY DAISY DEAN

It was our intention when we interviewed the genial Walter Hiers recently to ignore his undisputed chubbiness entirely. We felt that it would be a treat to him to see one story about himself in print that did not mention his avoirdupois. But, as a contemporary of ours recently said, 'His face and figure, you know, do count heavily in his fortunes." And when Walter himself remarked: "You know my father and mother were both fat and I was a fat baby and a fat boy," we gave up and decided not to try to be original.

Walter Hiers is a native of the "sunny south," Cordele, Ga., being his birthplace. He was "raised" in Savannah and educated in Peekskill, N. Y. Military Academy. His schoolmates thought he ought to go on the stage as he could sing and had some whistling tricks that made him a popular member of the school dramatic club. He interviewed Gus Edwards while on vacation in New York and got nine weeks' work, and the next summer played in a sketch with Frank Sheridan.

About this time he heard that the old Lubin company wanted a stout boy for a part and though Hiers sniffed somewhat at the movies (which were not taken very seriously in those days), nevertheless the salary looked good to him and he tried it out. He made one-reelers for Lubin, then Tannhauser signed him and after that came his long contract with Paramount. His first picture for that company was the fat boy part in "Seventeen." He later played character parts with Bryant Washburn, Douglas McLean.

Some of his later pictures for Paramount are "Mr. Billings Spends His Dime," "Bought and Paid For," "Fair Week" and "Three O'Clock in the Morning."

Hiers is now under contract with Educational to make six pictures a year. The first two of the first series have been released and are "Short Change" and "A Fat Chance." The third has been temporarily titled, "Scared Stiff." He is also doing some free lancing and has just finished a colored porter characterization in Rupert Hughes' "Excuse Me," with Norma Shearer before starting his personal appearance tour.

Lila Lee (Mrs. James Kirkwood) has been in temporary retirement from the screen since shortly before the birth of the Kirkwood son and heir. But now that Mr. Kirkwood, Jr., is several months old Thomas Meighan has been clamoring to have Lila play opposite him in his new picture, "Bed Rock." The popular Thomas opines that he can do his best acting only with Mrs. Kirkwood as his leading lady. She was with him in "Back Home and Broke," you remember.

Lila Lee Kirkwood is a New York girl and went on the stage under the management of Gus Edwards when she was a very tiny tot. She was in vaudeville for ten years and then commenced her screen career. "The Soul of Youth" for Realart was her first recorded picture. For paramount she made "After the Show." "Rent Free," One Glorious Day," "Blood and Sand," "Ebb Tide," etc., and the aforementioned "Back Home and Broke."

Lila and her husband were also co-starred in several pictures, the last one being titled "Another Man's Wife." Lila has lovely black eyes (which is said the baby inherits) and dark hair.

No one would think that Edwin Carewe, dignified motion picture director, had ever been a hobo. Nor his friend Jim Tully, author of "Emmett Lawler" and "Beggers of Life," tales of American tramp life. But 20 years ago these two in company with "Frisco Slim" and "A 1." (those are not their real names but are the ones they go by in trampland,) tramped the ties in joyous abandon. Recently the two last named blew into Los Angeles and treated Carewe and Tully to an old-time hobo lunch of "cow canyon." mulligan" and coffee cooked by the veteran tramps and served in tin cans.

Lloyd Hughes has been chosen to play the male lead opposite Corinne Griffith in "Declasse," the famous Ethel Barrymore stage offering. Others selected for parts and loan Standing, Hedda Hopper and Lilyan Tashman, Louise Fazenda, Olive Brook, Rockcliffe Fellowes, and others.

Director George Fitzmaurice is said to have obtained eighteen thousand Oriental pearls for a costume worn by Aileen Pringle in "A Thief in Paradise," his latest production for Samuel Goldwyn and First National.

Little Jackie Coogan has a baby brother. Will he take Jackie's place in movie fans hearts, we wonder, when, Jackie outgrows kid roles?

Marguerite De la Motte and John Bowers have offered a headline vaudeville engagement in a sketch which a well known writer is preparing. The popular screen stars have not been able so far, to see their way clear to accept the offer.

June Mathis, highest paid movie scenario writer in the business, was married recently to Sylvano Balboni in Los Angeles. Miss Mathis was the first to discover the screen talents of Rudolph Valentino and wrote several of the stories in which he attained fame.

Mr. and Mrs. James Francis Dillon are the delighted parents of a brand new son, James Francis Dillon, Jr., born Saturday, Nov. 29, in New York. Mrs. Dillon is known professionally as Edith Hallor, former Ziegfeld Follies girl and screen star. Mr. Dillon is now directing "One Way Street" for First National.

J. Warren Kerrigan recently met with a serious accident that may necessitate his retirement from the screen, or at least limit him to character parts. He was hurled through the windshield of an automobile in a collision with another machine in a heavy fog at Dixon, Ill. Kerrigan suffered lacerations of the face and will, we hear, consult a plastic surgeon in Chicago as soon as he recovers sufficiently.

Dorothy Mackall and Antonio Moreno are to play the leading roles in "One Year to Live" for First National. The picture is an adaptation of John Hunter's novel which appeared in serial form in newspapers throughout the country.

Site of First Placer Found by Searching Party in California

SAN FRANCISCO—The exact location of Sutter's sawmill, Eldorado county, where gold was discovered January 24, 1848, has been certified to by the Society of California Pioneers.

A long controversy is nearer settlement by excavations in the south fork of the American river. Drought last summer dwindled it to a rivulet; and a searching party, headed by Paul B. Bekeart, of the society, unearthed the old mill where it has remained since the floods of 1861 deflected the river channel over this historic site.

School books which explain how gold was first discovered in California at "Sutter's Fort," or Sutter's Creek," will need revision, according to results of these discoveries of the society.

He interviewed Gus Edwards while on vacation in New York and got nine weeks' work, and the next summer played in a sketch with Frank Sheridan.

About this time he heard that the old Lubin company wanted a stout boy for a part and though Hiers sniffed somewhat at the movies (which were not taken very seriously in those days), nevertheless the salary looked good to him and he tried it out. He made one-reelers for Lubin, then Tannhauser signed him and after that came his long contract with Paramount. His first picture for that company was the fat boy part in "Seventeen." He later played character parts with Bryant Washburn, Douglas McLean.

Some of his later pictures for Paramount are "Mr. Billings Spends His Dime," "Bought and Paid For," "Fair Week" and "Three O'Clock in the Morning."

Hiers is now under contract with Educational to make six pictures a year. The first two of the first series have been released and are "Short Change" and "A Fat Chance." The third has been temporarily titled, "Scared Stiff." He is also doing some free lancing and has just finished a colored porter characterization in Rupert Hughes' "Excuse Me," with Norma Shearer before starting his personal appearance tour.

Lila Lee (Mrs. James Kirkwood) has been in temporary retirement from the screen since shortly before the birth of the Kirkwood son and heir. But now that Mr. Kirkwood, Jr., is several months old Thomas Meighan has been clamoring to have Lila play opposite him in his new picture, "Bed Rock." The popular Thomas opines that he can do his best acting only with Mrs. Kirkwood as his leading lady. She was with him in "Back Home and Broke," you remember.

Lila Lee Kirkwood is a New York girl and went on the stage under the management of Gus Edwards when she was a very tiny tot. She was in vaudeville for ten years and then commenced her screen career. "The Soul of Youth" for Realart was her first recorded picture. For paramount she made "After the Show," "Rent Free," One Glorious Day," "Blood and Sand," "Ebb Tide," etc., and the aforementioned "Back Home and Broke."

Lila and her husband were also co-starred in several pictures, the last one being titled "Another Man's Wife." Lila has lovely black eyes (which is said the baby inherits) and dark hair.

No one would think that Edwin Carewe, dignified motion picture director, had ever been a hobo. Nor his friend Jim Tully, author of "Emmett Lawler" and "Beggers of Life," tales of American tramp life. But 20 years ago these two in company with "Frisco Slim" and "A 1." (those are not their real names but are the ones they go by in trampland,) tramped the ties in joyous abandon. Recently the two last named blew into Los Angeles and treated Carewe and Tully to an old-time hobo lunch of "cow canyon." mulligan" and coffee cooked by the veteran tramps and served in tin cans.

Lloyd Hughes has been chosen to play the male lead opposite Corinne Griffith in "Declasse," the famous Ethel Barrymore stage offering. Others selected for parts and Joan Standing, Hedda Hopper and Lilyan Tashman. Louise Fazenda. Olive Brook, Rockcliffe Fellowes, and others.

Director George Fitzmaurice is said to have obtained eighteen thousand Oriental pearls for a costume worn by Aileen Pringle in "A Thief in Paradise," his latest production for Samuel Goldwyn and First National.

Little Jackie Coogan has a baby brother. Will he take Jackie's place in movie fans hearts, we wonder, when, Jackie outgrows kid roles?

Marguerite De la Motte and John Bowers have offered a headline vaudeville engagement in a sketch which a well known writer is preparing. The popular screen stars have not been able so far, to see their way clear to accept the offer.

June Mathis, highest paid movie scenario writer in the business, was married recently to Sylvano Balboni in Los Angeles. Miss Mathis was the first to discover the screen talents of Rudolph Valentino and wrote several of the stories in which he attained fame.

Mr. and Mrs. James Francis Dillon are the delighted parents of a brand new son, James Francis Dillon, Jr., born Saturday, Nov. 29, in New York. Mrs. Dillon is known professionally as Edith Hallor, former Ziegfeld Follies girl and screen star. Mr. Dillon is now directing "One Way Street" for First National.

J. Warren Kerrigan recently met with a serious accident that may necessitate his retirement from the screen, or at least limit him to character parts. He was hurled through the windshield of an automobile in a collision with another machine in a heavy fog at Dixon, Ill. Kerrigan suffered lacerations of the face and will, we hear, consult a plastic surgeon in Chicago as soon as he recovers sufficiently.

Dorothy Mackall and Antonio Moreno are to play the leading roles in "One Year to Live" for First National. The picture is an adaptation of John Hunter's novel which appeared in serial form in newspapers throughout the country.

Site of First Placer Found by Searching Party in California

SAN FRANCISCO—The exact location of Sutter's sawmill, Eldorado county, where gold was discovered January 24, 1848, has been certified to by the Society of California Pioneers.

A long controversy is nearer settlement by excavations in the south fork of the American river. Drought last summer dwindled it to a rivulet; and a searching party, headed by Paul B. Bekeart, of the society, unearthed the old mill where it has remained since the floods of 1861 deflected the river channel over this historic site.

School books which explain how gold was first discovered in California at "Sutter's Fort," or Sutter's Creek," will need revision, according to results of these discoveries of the society.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND
BY DAISY DEAN

It was our intention when we interviewed the genial Walter Hiers recently to ignore his undisputed chubbiness entirely. We felt that it would be a treat to him to see one story about himself in print that did not mention his avoirdupois. But, as a contemporary of ours recently said, 'His face and figure, you know do count heavily in his fortunes." And when Walter himself remarked: "You know my father and mother were both fat and I was a fat baby and a fat boy," we gave up and decided not to try to be original.

Walter Hiers is a native of the "sunny south," Cordele, Ga., being his birthplace. He was "raised" in Savannah and educated in Peekshill, N. Y. Military Academy. His schoolmates thought he ought to go on the stage as he could sing and had some whistling tricks that made him a popular member of the school dramatic club. He interviewed Gus Edwards while on vacation in New York and got nine weeks' work, and the next summer played in a sketch with Frank Sheridan.

About this time he heard that the old Lubin company wanted a stout boy for a part and though Hiers sniffed somewhat at the movies (which were not taken very seriously in those days), nevertheless the salary looked good to him and he tried it out. THE DOUBLE HOUSE

By Elizabeth Dejeans

Karesia had gained her poise also. "Our signatures must be witnessed, I suppose?"

"They should be, of course."

"I wonder whom we can get?"

"Your neighbors?"

"Mercy, no! I don't want any one to know what an outrageous rent I am getting!"

Dascome laughed; child, girl, woman, both sophisticated and unsophisticated! She certainly possessed a Russian's naivete—a barbarian well streaked with culture! John Dascome may have thought everal other things, for he knew Sonya Karesia Kaime much better than she knew him. Whatever his purpose, she was able to stir him, for he was not a man who flushed easily or laughed easily; he had known too many women and had wandered through too many byways to be easily stirred.

"It can be managed. My car is out here—we can hunt up some distant witnesses—a druggist and his clerk will do. We must have a legal document, of course." He looked pleasant when he laughed, his steady eyes became whimsical.

Karesia leaned back and looked up at him, half serious, half mirthful. "You see, people are so curious over what it none of their business. Today a wobbly old man from the house across the street came over to tell me that everybody had noticed that I had put up a sign for rent. He had noticed that it was gone. Had I rented my house? Indeed, and so soon! To whom had I rented, and what was I getting for it?"

Dascome's face settled into gravity. "Did you tell him to whom?"

"Did I? I said that I had hoped that by building my house high enough to look over their heads I had intimated my lack of interest in my neighbors and their property—certainly I had hoped to escape their curiosity. I assured him, however, that I was a kind-hearted woman and should he be troubled again with insomnia over a matter that did not concern him, he will find me ready to receive him. He did not stay long."

Dascome smiled again. "Beneath your apparently placable exterior you are a severe person."

"All I ask is to be let alone by people who don't interest me. Shall we go?" She rose. "I must tell Mary Bliss not to——"

Karesia did not finish her sentence, for her front door bell rang. "Now who can that be?" she said with annoyance. "I shall have to see."

"Perhaps your elderly neighbor again?"

"A prospective burglar—or a long-lost lover!" she retored laughingly.

The last word had barely left her lips when she opened the door. Dascome had watched her go, the way she walked and held her head; he saw how she stood when the door was open, a certain rigidity, the way her hand dropped to her side. Beyond her he glimpsed the man, the sight of whom seemed to have turned her to stone—a young man with Latin features and black hair brushed back smoothly from his forehead.

She said nothing; it was the man who spoke first and clearly. "I am not a ghost, Kara mia—may I enter?"

She drew back; then Dascome saw her face, blanched and carven. She had not said a word; it was the man who spoke again. He had come in with an easy swing, tall and lithe, head set on good shoulders. He lifted Karesia's hand, bent and kissed it. "Merci bien!" His voice was full and resonant.

Her answer was low and dull. "Rand—you surprised me."

"So I see," he answered lightly.

His brilliant blue eyes had sped down the room to Dascome, standing erect and expressionless by the table. They knew each other by sight, each had reason to know the other. Randsome Rossiter looked somewhat older than in the days of the Dascome trial, though he did not look his age; he appeared a younger thirty-five than Dascome did a forty-two.

Dascome saw Karesia change from a frozen white to a hot crimson. "I had forgotten that you love the erratic."

"Meaning yourself, Kara?" Rossiter returned coolly. "I have not forgotten—I came to remind you of it. After all, this is a tiny globe! Here we are—you have made something of Sonya Karesia Kaime, and I should have done better for Randsome Favrique Rossiter. It's amusing—suppose we talk about it?"

It was a reminder of some sort; at any rate, Karesia gained a sort of frozen self-control. There was only the brief pause during which her eyes widened. "I have heard of Randsome Rossiter, but I never connected you with—the acquaintance of five years ago." She turned. "Mr. Dascome—Mr. Rossiter."

They bowed, but did not shake hands. "I have heard of Mr. John Dascome frequently," Rossiter said. In his Irish-blue eyes lay mockery half concealed, also something searching, questioning, an ill-disguised antagonism.

Dascome met his gaze fixedly. "Yes?"

"I have met your daughter several times."

"So she has told me."

Rossiter turned to Karesia. "I am a neighbor of yours, Kara—from my windows across the canyon I can see yours."

She looked at him gravely. "Yes, Rossiter Hill. It was pointed out to me when I first came. It is a beautiful place."

"It will be when the trees are grown. I watched your house building—you always wanted a big studio room like this. . . . My word! The same rugs! How well I remember them! But the paintings, what have you done with them? . . . You have not changed much, Karamia." His eyes enveloped her, swept from her pile of dusky hair to her white throat, down her slim body.

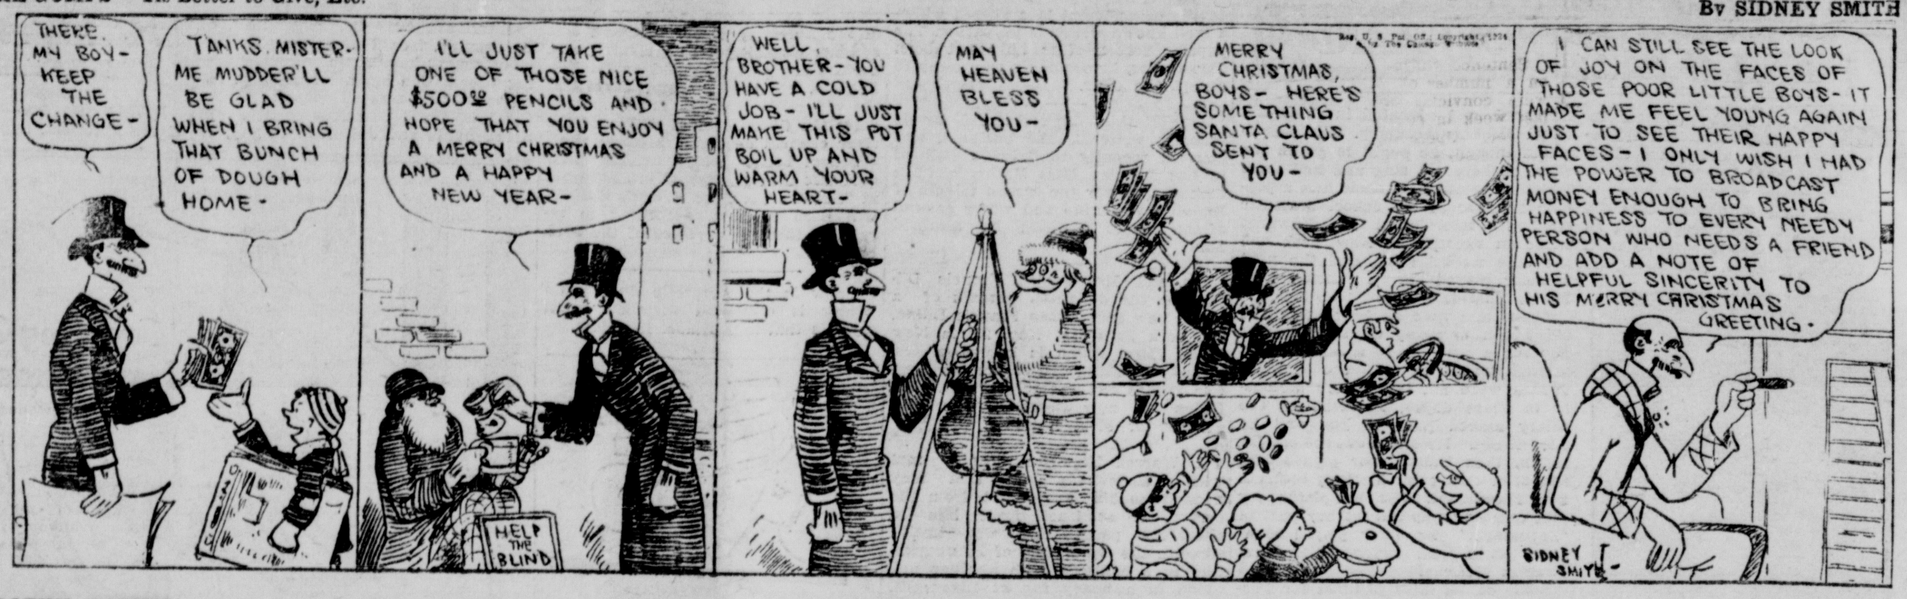

A gleam shot from beneath Karesia's drooping eyelids, flash of defiance. "I should be delighted to give you an inventory of my modest possessions, but I have a business engagement with Mr. Dascome—we were just going out when you came. I shall go up and get my things, then you will kindly excuse us," and she turned with her usual swiftness when embarked on an objective.

But Rossiter followed her; with the tail of his eye on Dascome, he said clearly, "I'll come up with you, Kara."

Beyond her he glimpsed the man, the sight of whom seemed to have turned her to stone—a young man with Latin features and black hair brushed back smoothly from his forehead.

She said nothing; it was the man who spoke first and clearly. "I am not a ghost, Kara mia—may I enter?"

She drew back; then Dascome saw her face, blanched and carven. She had not said a word; it was the man who spoke again. He had come in with an easy swing, tall and lithe, head set on good shoulders. He lifted Karesia's hand, bent and kissed it. "Merci bien!" His voice was full and resonant.

Her answer was low and dull. "Rand—you surprised me."

"So I see," he answered lightly.

His brilliant blue eyes had sped down the room to Dascome, standing erect and expressionless by the table. They knew each other by sight, each had reason to know the other. Randsome Rossiter looked somewhat older than in the days of the Dascome trial, though he did not look his age; he appeared a younger thirty-five than Dascome did a forty-two.

Dascome saw Karesia change from a frozen white to a hot crimson. "I had forgotten that you love the erratic."

"Meaning yourself, Kara?" Rossiter returned coolly. "I have not forgotten—I came to remind you of it. After all, this is a tiny globe! Here we are—you have made something of Sonya Karesia Kaime, and I should have done better for Randsome Favrique Rossiter. It's amusing—suppose we talk about it?"

It was a reminder of some sort; at any rate, Karesia gained a sort of frozen self-control. There was only the brief pause during which her eyes widened. "I have heard of Randsome Rossiter, but I never connected you with—the acquaintance of five years ago." She turned. "Mr. Dascome—Mr. Rossiter."

They bowed, but did not shake hands. "I have heard of Mr. John Dascome frequently," Rossiter said. In his Irish-blue eyes lay mockery half concealed, also something searching, questioning, and ill-disguised antagonism.

Dascome met his gaze fixedly. "Yes?"

"I have met your daughter several times."

"So she has told me."

Rossiter turned to Karesia. "I am a neighbor of yours, Kara—from my windows across the canyon I can see yours."

She looked at him gravely. "Yes, Rossiter Hill. It was pointed out to me when I first came. It is a beautiful place."

"It will be when the trees are grown. I watched your house building—you always wanted a big studio room like this. . . . My word! The same rugs! How well I remember them! But the paintings, what have you done with them? . . . You have not changed much, Karamia." His eyes enveloped her, swept from her pile of dusky hair to her white throat, down her slim body.

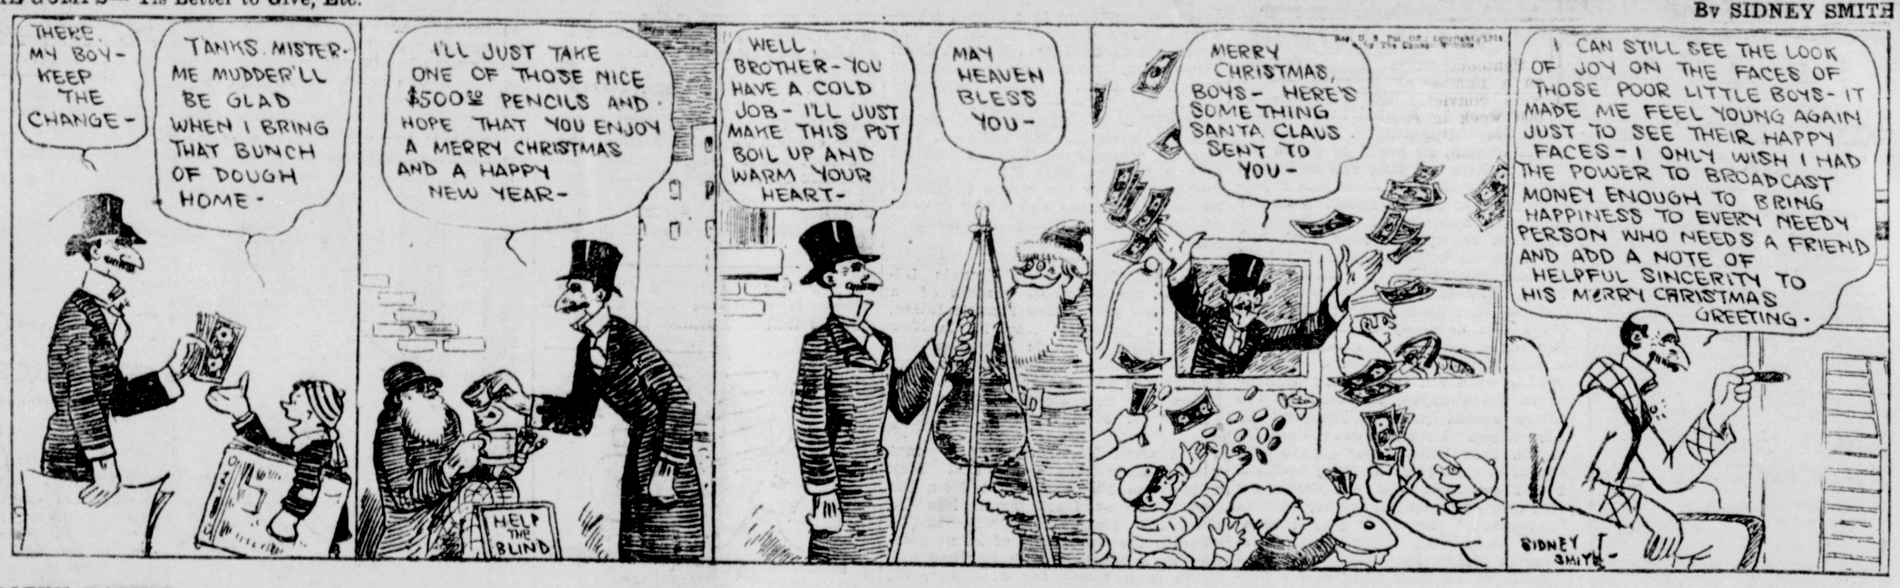

A gleam shot from beneath Karesia's drooping eyelids, flash of defiance. "I should be delighted to give you an inventory of my modest possessions, but I have a business engagement with Mr. Dascome—we were just going out when you came. I shall go up and get my things, then you will kindly excuse us," and she turned with her usual swiftness when embarked on an objective.

But Rossiter followed her; with the tail of his eye on Dascome, he said clearly, "I'll come up with you, Kara."

Girls Qualified to Pick Mates Says Noted Engineer's Daughter

Miss Natalie Hammond, debutante daughter of John Hays Hammond, famous mining engineer, takes exceptions to the statement of Dr Kate Walter Barrett, feminist, that mothers should continue to choose their daughters' mates. "Girls nowadays are qualified to do their own choosing—and most of them seek mental cavemen," she asserts.

Living in a house numbered 13, a London miss had thirteen children attend her at her wedding on October 13, and the reception was held at 13 Mansfield street.

Ohio Farmer Solves Problem of Making His Sausage Machine

LAURELVILLE, O. — Sam Lentz, farmer, living near here, was in a quandary. He was unable to operate his big sausage grinder by hand. Then he thought of his flivver. Wheeling it on to the job, he connected the machine and the sausage maker by means of a pulley. The grinder worked so fast it took two men to feed the hopper. Sam's two fat hogs were saved.

The life net now used by fire departments was the invention of an acrobat following the death of his brother in a fall while performing.

BRIGHT SPOT IN DAY'S NEWS

Three wise youths went to Columbus in search of "work or trouble." The same three wise youths didn't pull the right lines to get a job, but they had little difficulty.

After they had given up prospects of finding work, the youths—William Markle, Steubenville; Thomas La Boda and George Holidic, both of Cleveland, approached a stranger.

"Direct us to a tough place," said one, "where we can get into a good fight."

The stranger smiled.

"Come with me," he said.

The three accompanied their guide to the city prison where they first learned the stranger was a detective.

Rickard Urges House Cleaning Among Boxing Champs

Runyon Says

"Pete the Goat" Breaks Silence.
He Predicts the Next Champion.
Thinks It Will Be Montgomery.
"Praying Colonel" Great Prospect.
Roper and McGoorty Had Him.

By DAMON RUNYON.

(Copyright, 1924, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

"PETE THE GOAT" is a silent, phlegmatic fellow, indigenous to Manhattan Island, familiar to thousands of New York "ringworms" who never heard his name.

They have seen his "dead pan"—his impassive countenance of bluish-blackish tint, in which are set two cold, expressionless eyes — behind scores of fighters in the past 15 years.

That is his occupation—handling fighters. He is accounted a great second. His right name is Peter Stone. Years ago he was attached to the camp of a real great fighter, Stanley Ketchel, called "The Michigan Assassin."

Ketchel was middleweight champion of the world. Old timers will tell you that the ring has not seen his equal in that division since his day. As to the habit of men who once were associated with a great fighter, "Pete the Goat" measures all fighters by his memory of Ketchel.

"Pete the Goat" thinks Ketchel could have whipped any fighter in the world today up to Dempsey.

That probably isn't true. But men who once were associated with a great fighter are that way. Perhaps time warps their perspective. Perhaps it is loyalty.

Joe Humphreys, announcer at pugilistic events in New York rings, has undoubtedly seen more boxers than any other living man. He has been actively connected with the game for over 30 years.

Humphreys was closely associated with Terry McGovern, "The Brooklyn Terror," a bantam and featherweight fighter of years ago. Of the thousands of fighters he has seen, Humphreys still thinks McGovern was the greatest.

He has never yet seen a man whose name he could mention in the same breath with McGovern's. He thinks McGovern at his best could have knocked out all the fighters of today up to Mickey Walker.

"Pete the Goat," after years of cold, cynical contemplation of the fighters since Ketchel's time, has finally come upon one he thinks will approach Ketchel in ability, in two-handed punching power.

This fighter is Sully Montgomery, the young man who went to Centre college to study for the ministry, who rose to some passing fame with the Centre college football team of a few years ago as a tackle.

"Peter the Goat" goes so far as to say he thinks Montgomery is the next heavyweight champion of the world, a prediction that may make "Pete the Goat" famous, or live to haunt him. When a man goes on definite record about a fighter he may never again lift his voice in pugilistic argument if that fighter prove a failure.

It is a severe penalty.

His surprise is apparently in the fact that the writer wasn't disgruntled when Montgomery proved him a bad prophet on the occasion of the collegian's first appearance in New York.

That was when Montgomery fought Quintin Romero-Rojas, a hard-headed, two-fisted, plunging, snorting citizen of Chile, who more recently got a decision over Jack Renault in Boston.

The writer met "Pete the Goat" in the lobby of Madison Square Garden before the fight. "Pete the Goat" said earnestly:

"You know I don't often get excited over new fighters, Damon, but this fellow you're going to see tonight looks pretty good to me."

"Yes?" said the writer, who thought he had more inside information on Montgomery than anyone else, "Well, Romero will probably knock him out."

The fight was called a draw.

The writer thought Montgomery should have had the decision on points.

He disclosed himself as a speedy fellow, of nice appearance, with two good hands. He was quite at variance with what the writer had heard of him, had thought of him.

Long before "Pete the Goat" ever saw Montgomery, or before Montgomery's name had been generally mentioned in the east as a fighter, the writer was printing letters about him from old Ben Dobbin, pugilistic pioneer of the Southwest, who gave Montgomery his first fistic schooling.

Ben wrote hopefully of his protege for some time. He said he thought he had a coming champion even when fifth raters were out-floundering the collegian. Then Montgomery got knocked over a couple of times.

Finally Ben wrote that Montgomery had got married and retired from the game. It seemed just as well.

Old Captain Bob Roper, jaunting through the Southwest, came upon Montgomery next. This was in Fort Worth, if memory serves.

Captain Bob Roper is a picteresque figure of pugilism who developed after the war. He fought many ring battles in a few years. He wrote to this column not long ago but he intended retiring and going into business. Then quite recently he bobbed up, losing to Eddie Huffman, the young sensation of the West coast.

Roper informed the writer that he had taken over the management of Montgomery, that he expected to make him champion. He took him to Chicago anyway. Then a letter came to the writer from Eddie McGorty, old-time middleweight, saying he had assumed the management of Montgomery and expected to make him champion.

Kindly observe that every man who has managed Montgomery, said he expected to make Montgomery champion.

"Pete the Goat" is not Montgomery's manager, though he makes the prediction that Montgomery will be champion. The manager is Frank Churchill, who supplies the missing managerial statement that he expects to make Montgomery champion.

The collegian MUST have something, must have always had something that so favorably impresses veterans of the boxing game. Whatever that something is, Dobbin saw it, Roper saw it, McGorty saw it. Now "Pete the Goat" sees it, Churchill sees it.

Moreover, Alec McLean, Boston veteran who has handled many good boxers in the past twenty years, promoted many pugilistic events, sees the same thing.

After Montgomery's fight with McCreary, Alec McLean visited the collegian's dressing room, shook hands with Montgomery, and said:

"I'm shaking hands with the next heavyweight champion of the world."

McLean may be wrong, "Pete the Goat may be wrong—they all may be wrong.

There can be but ONE heavyweight champion.

At least Montgomery has as good a chance as any. And in any event the former "Praying Colonel" has more color, more background than any of the others.

WOMAN CHAMPION HORSESHOE STAR WILL OPPOSE MEN

LAKE WORTH, Fla., Dec. 23.—Women from time immemorial have stilled fear in the hearts of men with rolling pins, hair pins, and other articles of domestic use, but it remained for Mrs. C. A. Lanham, of Bloomington, Ill., an unassuming diminutive "south paw" and the modest holder of six of eight women's championship horse shoe tossing records, to frighten sturdy male exponents of "barnyard gaw," with a pair of horse shoes.

Mrs. Lanham, who holds the women's horse shoe tossing championship of the world, will again enter the men's professional class in the National Mid-Winter Horse Shoe Tossing tournament at Lake Worth, Florida, in February. Her announcement has been followed by protests from men contenders in all parts of the country.

Mrs. Lanham plays a great game, averaging as many ringers as most men. Her record is enough to make any male aspirant shiver at the thought of competition.

Close followers of the horse shoe game believe that Mrs. Lantham can win one of the first three places in any men's national meet. This seems possible after observing her list of world's records for women pitchers, which are as follows:

1. 77 per cent ringers in one 50-point game.
2. 56 per cent ringers in six 50-point games.
3. 32 ringers—the largest number made in one game by one player.
4. 11 double ringers—the largest number made in one game by one player.
5. 5 double ringers in succession—the largest number made in one game by one player.
6. 16 double ringers—the lragest number made by two players in one 50-point game.

Title Holders Who Won't Fight Blamed For Fistic Famine

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—The worthy state athletic commission plans to act today on the challenge of Tom Gibbons to Gene Tunney, a young man who is pleased to call himself the light heavyweight champion of America. The resultant showdown, if any, will produce one of six new champions likely to be crowned during 1925. If Tunney is ever so ill-advised as to place himself in one and the same ring with Gibbons, his reign will cease automatically.

The trick, of course, is to get Tunney to defend the title, just as is the case with all other champions. They ran around the sun from one end of 1924 to the other and a fistic famine was the result. But the dread day of reckoning is at hand. Harken to our Mr. Rickard who speaks with authority on the subject.

"It would be a great thing for boxing if we have a titular house cleaning in 1925," he said. "As fighters, some of our champions are not even good actors. Something will have to be done about the sidestepping of our champions and I look for the state athletic commission to take definite action soon. Say what you will, a champion is only a champion as long as he is ready to meet any one in the field. When he isn't, his title becomes a joke."

In the opinion of Rickard and others, Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker are the only champions who figure to stick with the situation through another year. The rest of them either are passing or rapidly becoming so.

Starting at the bottom and working up, as did the hero in that literary epic, from bootblack to bootlegger, we have the Pancho Villa dominating the flyweight class. Pancho is believed to be slipping badly, and some even go as far as to suggest that he hasn't the slightest intention of returning to America.

The writer does not hold with this idea. There is important money awaiting Pancho here in a titular frolic with Frankie Genaro and the Fillipino is known as a collector of rare and well done coins. When he comes on to collect it is the general idea that that Genaro will fall heir to the title. He has beaten Villa three times.

Eddie Cannonball Martin, the new bantam champion, may or may not remain with us indefinitely. The division has few good fighters, Abe Goldstein and the Cannonball, champions past and present, being its only really representative men. Goldstein is the better of the two and probably would win in a return bout, if any.

Johnny Dundee has forsaken the featherweight title leaving it to the tender mercies of the young and new competing in an elimination tourney. The ultimate survivor will be one of 1925's new champions and he may not be long for this life, at that. The contenders are hardly an encouraging lot.

Kid Sullivan, of whom you may or may not have heard, happens to be junior lightweight champion or some such. He is supposed to be through and might lose his title the first time out, just as though any one cared.

Our Mr. Leonard, of course, is very busy opening and shutting stage doors but the big money will get him not later than next summer. It is generally understood that Benjamin no longer can make 135 pounds and be nonchalant about it. Therefore, it is quite possible that he will be "taken" by either Sid Terris or Sammy Mandell. He may step out with Mickey Walker for the welterweight championship, in which case most of the wise money will ride with Walker.

Harry Greb is supposed to be slipping and the boys seem to feel that Tiger Flowers will beat him if they can be set down in the same ring. They also think Flowers can beat Mike McTigue, but I doubt it. No one can beat McTigue unless they wait for him in a dark alley.

Dempsey seems to be immune from disturbance, unless like Leonard his life of ease and refinement has undermined his vitality. In this case, Gibbons would outstep him almost to a certainty and Harry Wills might outrough him.

"Crosswords, Rah! Hold 'em Webster—" New College Yell

"One more word, Yale."
"Beat 'em to the dictionary, Eli!"
"Crosswords, Crimson, Come on Harvard.

These cheering yells from the parlor sidelines may replace the ringing football cheers of old if the crossword puzzle craze pursues its present course. For crossword puzzle teams are being organized in the leading colleges.

The leading coach of the future may be a college professor who knows a word for thanatophobia in three letters, and not a star end of the class of '00.

NURMI SHOWS WELL IN TRIALS

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Athletic experts expressed themselves today as being impressed with the recent trial shown by Paave Nurmi, great Finnish runner, who is here to test his speed on the boards against the best of America's distance runners. Nurmi was dissatisfied with his attempts to run indoors and hardly more than a week ago was talking of returning to his native land without so much as setting foot on an American track in a race.

He will meet a select field in a special mile at the Finnish-American A. C. games on January 6 and later in the evening will go to the mark against Willie Ritola, and others in a 5,000 metre race. His work to date has bene confined to distance running in Van Cortlandt park and to brief quarter mile spurts on a local armory floor. No announcement has been made of the time made by Murmi in his trials.

LIST POSTPONED CAGE CONTESTS

Postponed games in the "Y" industrial volleyball circuit were arranged by managers at their meeting last night.

Three contests have been carded, as follow:

Dec. 26—Laughlin 5 vs. Trotters.
Dec. 29—Laughlin 5 vs. Liverpool Motors; Trotters vs. Potters.
Jan. 2—Trotters vs. Liverpool Motors.

WHAT'S RESULT? FANS WONDER

Has Game Benefited by Landis-Johnson Row?

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—The spanking of Ban Johnson by the magnates to satisfy Commissioner Landis, appease his wrath and possibly save him to baseball, is history.

Johnson, apparently, has taken his medicine.

But now that it is all over the fans are seeking with a mircroscope to learn just how the game has been benefited.

They point out, and they may well do so, that it has done nothing toward clearing up the situation which brought about the upheavel, the harsh words, injured feelings and then the losing of the peace doves.

The situation referred to is the attempt of Jimmy O'Connell, at the asserted instigation of Cozy Dolan, to bribe Heinie Sands of the Phillies to throw a game to the Giants last fall. They needed the game to land the National League pennant.

Johnson got in bad because he urged steps as a result of the expose. He came out frankly in favor of eliminating the Giants as participants in the world's series and the substitution of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Landis, handling the matter with a high hand, banished O'Connell and Dolan from the game and "cleared" the names of the other members of the Giant team mentioned by O'Connell in his sorrowful confession. Landis did not give to the public a complete statement of the testimony of these men or reveal any other facts is is generally accepted he unearthed.

He did announce that the matter was not closed. But as far as additional revelations to date are concerned it might as well have been.

The move of the magnates in spanking Johnson, curtailing his powers and preparing for a way to fire him has—on the face of things—sanctioned the manner in which Landis handled the case and expressed their dissatisfaction over Johnson's efforts to carry the matter further.

No suggestion was made, however, that, having received a vote of confidence and expressed approval of his methods, Landis might reveal any further efforts he has made to land the "higher ups" in the scandal.

So much for Landis.

As for Ben Johnson. He had startling revelations he was going to make. The time for him to have made them was when his sincerity, his desire to further the good of the game, were questioned, Johnson, however, kept silent. He has done the game no good by so doing.

Philly club suffered financial reverse last season in freak lawsuit. Profits of one entire week were lost when magistrate ruled that small boy might keep ball batted into bleachers.

Last Night's Fights

AT WINDSOR ,Ont.—Johnny Mellow, Detroit, won decision from Bobby Ward, St. Paul, ten rounds. Jack Helko, Los Angeles, was stopped by John Weber, Detroit, in third.

Brooklyn—Tommy O'Brien, Milwaukee, got the decision over Johnny Lombardo, Philadelphia, 10 rounds. Jack McVey, New York, got the decision over Vic Hirsch, Chicago, ten rounds.

NEW YORK—Mickey Brown, New York won on a foul from Tommy Lynch, New York, eight rounds. Spencer Gardner, Newport, R. I., got the decision over Jack Hausner, New York, 10 rounds.

WEST LIBERTY ARRANGING CARD

WEST LIBERTY, W. Va., Dec. 23.—The 1925 West Liberty State Normal football schedule is almost completed, according to announcement by Coach Stoops. Eight games have been scheduled to date. At least two and possible three newcomers will be met in 1925. The showing of the 1924 eleven which has a strong claim to the normal championship of West Virginia has made it easy to arrange the 1925 schedule which will be much stiffer than the 1924 card.

It is known that of the teams met this past season, California State Normal, Fairmont State Teachers' college, Slippery Rock State Normal (champions of Pennsylvania), Kent State Teachers' college, Glenville State Normal and Broaddus college will be met in 1925. Two teams which have never been met in any branch of sport by a West Liberty team have been scheduled already and it is rumored that one or possibly two more new opponents of a high caliber may be encountered in 1925. In this event, Bethany Freshmen would not be booked next year. There is a strong possibility that the Salem contest will yet be arranged. Coach Casey and Graduate Manager Davis are said to be anxious to avenge the 13 to 6 setback administered by West Liberty this season. It is hardly probable that the Bethany yearlings will appear on the 1925 schedule owing to the miserable showing made this season on the gridiron.

The complete schedule will be given out in a few days and it is hinted that several surprises of a pleasing nature are in store for West Liberty enthusiasts.

National League standing changed slightly. Slogan of 1924 was: "The first shall be last, the last shall be first, and the Phillies shall be seventh."

Rickard Urges House Cleaning Among Boxing Champs

Runyon Says

"Pete the Goat" Breaks Silence.
He Predicts the Next Champion.
Thinks It Will Be Montgomery.
"Praying Colonel" Great Prospect.
Roper and McGoorty Had Him.

It is generally understood that Benjamin no longer can make 135 pounds and be nonchalant about it. Therefore, it is quite possible that he will be "taken" by either Sid Terris or Sammy Mandell. He may step out with Mickey Walker for the welterweight championship, in which case most of the wise money will ride with Walker.

Harry Greb is supposed to be slipping and the boys seem to feel that Tiger Flowers will beat him if they can be set down in the same ring. They also think Flowers can beat Mike McTigue, but I doubt it. No one can beat McTigue unless they wait for him in a dark alley.

Dempsey seems to be immune from disturbance, unless like Leonard his life of ease and refinement has undermined his vitality. In this case, Gibbons would outstep him almost to a certainty and Harry Wills might outrough him.

NURMI SHOWS WELL IN TRIALS

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Athletic experts expressed themselves today as being impressed with the recent trial shown by Paave Nurmi, great Finnish runner, who is here to test his speed on the boards against the best of America's distance runners. Nurmi was dissatisfied with his attempts to run indoors and hardly more than a week ago was talking of returning to his native land without so much as setting foot on an American track in a race.

He will meet a select field in a special mile at the Finnish-American A. C. games on January 6 and later in the evening will go to the mark against Willie Ritola, and others in a 5,000 metre race. His work to date has bene confined to distance running in Van Cortlandt park and to brief quarter mile spurts on a local armory floor. No announcement has been made of the time made by Murmi in his trials.

LIST POSTPONED CAGE CONTESTS

Dec. 29—Laughlin 5 vs. Liverpool Motors; Trotters vs. Potters.
Jan. 2—Trotters vs. Liverpool Motors.

WHAT'S RESULT? FANS WONDER

Has Game Benefited by Landis-Johnson Row?

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—The spanking of Ban Johnson by the magnates to satisfy Commissioner Landis, appease his wrath and possibly save him to baseball, is history.

Johnson, apparently, has taken his medicine.

But now that it is all over the fans are seeking with a mircroscope to learn just how the game has been benefited.

They point out, and they may well do so, that it has done nothing toward clearing up the situation which brought about the upheavel, the harsh words, injured feelings and then the losing of the peace doves.

The situation referred to is the attempt of Jimmy O'Connell, at the asserted instigation of Cozy Dolan, to bribe Heinie Sands of the Phillies to throw a game to the Giants last fall. They needed the game to land the National League pennant.

Johnson got in bad because he urged steps as a result of the expose. He came out frankly in favor of eliminating the Giants as participants in the world's series and the substitution of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Landis, handling the matter with a high hand, banished O'Connell and Dolan from the game and "cleared" the names of the other members of the Giant team mentioned by O'Connell in his sorrowful confession. Landis did not give to the public a complete statement of the testimony of these men or reveal any other facts is is generally accepted he unearthed.

He did announce that the matter was not closed. But as far as additional revelations to date are concerned it might as well have been.

The move of the magnates in spanking Johnson, curtailing his powers and preparing for a way to fire him has—on the face of things—sanctioned the manner in which Landis handled the case and expressed their dissatisfaction over Johnson's efforts to carry the matter further.

No suggestion was made, however, that, having received a vote of confidence and expressed approval of his methods, Landis might reveal any further efforts he has made to land the "higher ups" in the scandal.

So much for Landis.

As for Ben Johnson. He had startling revelations he was going to make. The time for him to have made them was when his sincerity, his desire to further the good of the game, were questioned, Johnson, however, kept silent. He has done the game no good by so doing.

Philly club suffered financial reverse last season in freak lawsuit. Profits of one entire week were lost when magistrate ruled that small boy might keep ball batted into bleachers.

Last Night's Fights

AT WINDSOR ,Ont.—Johnny Mellow, Detroit, won decision from Bobby Ward, St. Paul, ten rounds. Jack Helko, Los Angeles, was stopped by John Weber, Detroit, in third.

Brooklyn—Tommy O'Brien, Milwaukee, got the decision over Johnny Lombardo, Philadelphia, 10 rounds. Jack McVey, New York, got the decision over Vic Hirsch, Chicago, ten rounds.

NEW YORK—Mickey Brown, New York won on a foul from Tommy Lynch, New York, eight rounds. Spencer Gardner, Newport, R. I., got the decision over Jack Hausner, New York, 10 rounds.

WEST LIBERTY ARRANGING CARD

WEST LIBERTY, W. Va., Dec. 23.—The 1925 West Liberty State Normal football schedule is almost completed, according to announcement by Coach Stoops. Eight games have been scheduled to date. At least two and possible three newcomers will be met in 1925. The showing of the 1924 eleven which has a strong claim to the normal championship of West Virginia has made it easy to arrange the 1925 schedule which will be much stiffer than the 1924 card.

It is known that of the teams met this past season, California State Normal, Fairmont State Teachers' college, Slippery Rock State Normal (champions of Pennsylvania), Kent State Teachers' college, Glenville State Normal and Broaddus college will be met in 1925. Two teams which have never been met in any branch of sport by a West Liberty team have been scheduled already and it is rumored that one or possibly two more new opponents of a high caliber may be encountered in 1925. In this event, Bethany Freshmen would not be booked next year. There is a strong possibility that the Salem contest will yet be arranged. Coach Casey and Graduate Manager Davis are said to be anxious to avenge the 13 to 6 setback administered by West Liberty this season. It is hardly probable that the Bethany yearlings will appear on the 1925 schedule owing to the miserable showing made this season on the gridiron.

The complete schedule will be given out in a few days and it is hinted that several surprises of a pleasing nature are in store for West Liberty enthusiasts.

National League standing changed slightly. Slogan of 1924 was: "The first shall be last, the last shall be first, and the Phillies shall be seventh."

Rickard Urges House Cleaning Among Boxing Champs

Runyon Says

"Pete the Goat" Breaks Silence.
He Predicts the Next Champion.
Thinks It Will Be Montgomery.
"Praying Colonel" Great Prospect.
Roper and McGoorty Had Him.

By DAMON RUNYON.

(Copyright, 1924, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

"PETE THE GOAT" is a silent, phlegmatic fellow, indigenous to Manhattan Island, familiar to thousands of New York "ringworms" who never heard his name.

They have seen his "dead pan"—his impassive countenance of bluish-blackish tint, in which are set two cold, expressionless eyes — behind scores of fighters in the past 15 years.

That is his occupation—handling fighters. He is accounted a great second. His right name is Peter Stone. Years ago he was attached to the camp of a real great fighter, Stanley Ketchel, called "The Michigan Assassin."

Ketchel was middleweight champion of the world. Old timers will tell you that the ring has not seen his equal in that division since his day. As to the habit of men who once were associated with a great fighter, "Pete the Goat" measures all fighters by his memory of Ketchel.

"Pete the Goat" thinks Ketchel could have whipped any fighter in the world today up to Dempsey.

That probably isn't true. But men who once were associated with a great fighter are that way. Perhaps time warps their perspective. Perhaps it is loyalty.

Joe Humphreys, announcer at pugilistic events in New York rings, has undoubtedly seen more boxers than any other living man. He has been actively connected with the game for over 30 years.

Humphreys was closely associated with Terry McGovern, "The Brooklyn Terror," a bantam and featherweight fighter of years ago. Of the thousands of fighters he has seen, Humphreys still thinks McGovern was the greatest.

He has never yet seen a man whose name he could mention in the same breath with McGovern's. He thinks McGovern at his best could have knocked out all the fighters of today up to Mickey Walker.

"Pete the Goat," after years of cold, cynical contemplation of the fighters since Ketchel's time, has finally come upon one he thinks will approach Ketchel in ability, in two-handed punching power.

This fighter is Sully Montgomery, the young man who went to Centre college to study for the ministry, who rose to some passing fame with the Centre college football team of a few years ago as a tackle.

"Peter the Goat" goes so far as to say he thinks Montgomery is the next heavyweight champion of the world, a prediction that may make "Pete the Goat" famous, or live to haunt him. When a man goes on definite record about a fighter he may never again lift his voice in pugilistic argument if that fighter prove a failure.

It is a severe penalty.

"Pete the Goat" is evidently mildly surprised at this writer's recent recommendation of Montgomery as a heavyweight prospect.

His surprise is apparently in the fact that the writer wasn't disgruntled when Montgomery proved him a bad prophet on the occasion of the collegian's first appearance in New York.

That was when Montgomery fought Quintin Romero-Rojas, a hard-headed, two-fisted, plunging, snorting citizen of Chile, who more recently got a decision over Jack Renault in Boston.

The writer met "Pete the Goat" in the lobby of Madison Square Garden before the fight. "Pete the Goat" said earnestly:

"You know I don't often get excited over new fighters, Damon, but this fellow you're going to see tonight looks pretty good to me."

"Yes?" said the writer, who thought he had more inside information on Montgomery than anyone else, "Well, Romero will probably knock him out."

The fight was called a draw.

The writer thought Montgomery should have had the decision on points.

He disclosed himself as a speedy fellow, of nice appearance, with two good hands. He was quite at variance with what the writer had heard of him, had thought of him.

Long before "Pete the Goat" ever saw Montgomery, or before Montgomery's name had been generally mentioned in the east as a fighter, the writer was printing letters about him from old Ben Dobbin, pugilistic pioneer of the Southwest, who gave Montgomery his first fistic schooling.

Ben wrote hopefully of his protege for some time. He said he thought he had a coming champion even when fifth raters were out-floundering the collegian. Then Montgomery got knocked over a couple of times.

Finally Ben wrote that Montgomery had got married and retired from the game. It seemed just as well.

Old Captain Bob Roper, jaunting through the Southwest, came upon Montgomery next. This was in Fort Worth, if memory serves.

Captain Bob Roper is a picteresque figure of pugilism who developed after the war. He fought many ring battles in a few years. He wrote to this column not long ago but he intended retiring and going into business. Then quite recently he bobbed up, losing to Eddie Huffman, the young sensation of the West coast.

Roper informed the writer that he had taken over the management of Montgomery, that he expected to make him champion. He took him to Chicago anyway. Then a letter came to the writer from Eddie McGorty, old-time middleweight, saying he had assumed the management of Montgomery and expected to make him champion.

Kindly observe that every man who has managed Montgomery, said he expected to make Montgomery champion.

"Pete the Goat" is not Montgomery's manager, though he makes the prediction that Montgomery will be champion. The manager is Frank Churchill, who supplies the missing managerial statement that he expects to make Montgomery champion.

The collegian MUST have something, must have always had something that so favorably impresses veterans of the boxing game. Whatever that something is, Dobbin saw it, Roper saw it, McGorty saw it. Now "Pete the Goat" sees it, Churchill sees it.

Moreover, Alec McLean, Boston veteran who has handled many good boxers in the past twenty years, promoted many pugilistic events, sees the same thing.

After Montgomery's fight with McCreary, Alec McLean visited the collegian's dressing room, shook hands with Montgomery, and said:

"I'm shaking hands with the next heavyweight champion of the world."

McLean may be wrong, "Pete the Goat may be wrong—they all may be wrong.

Montgomery is one of a large number of heavyweight prospects. All of them, to hear their admirers tell it, are coming champions.

There can be but ONE heavyweight champion.

At least Montgomery has as good a chance as any. And in any event the former "Praying Colonel" has more color, more background than any of the others.

WOMAN CHAMPION HORSESHOE STAR WILL OPPOSE MEN

LAKE WORTH, Fla., Dec. 23.—Women from time immemorial have stilled fear in the hearts of men with rolling pins, hair pins, and other articles of domestic use, but it remained for Mrs. C. A. Lanham, of Bloomington, Ill., an unassuming diminutive "south paw" and the modest holder of six of eight women's championship horse shoe tossing records, to frighten sturdy male exponents of "barnyard gaw," with a pair of horse shoes.

Mrs. Lanham, who holds the women's horse shoe tossing championship of the world, will again enter the men's professional class in the National Mid-Winter Horse Shoe Tossing tournament at Lake Worth, Florida, in February. Her announcement has been followed by protests from men contenders in all parts of the country.

Mrs. Lanham plays a great game, averaging as many ringers as most men. Her record is enough to make any male aspirant shiver at the thought of competition.

Close followers of the horse shoe game believe that Mrs. Lantham can win one of the first three places in any men's national meet. This seems possible after observing her list of world's records for women pitchers, which are as follows:

1. 77 per cent ringers in one 50-point game.
2. 56 per cent ringers in six 50-point games.
3. 32 ringers—the largest number made in one game by one player.
4. 11 double ringers—the largest number made in one game by one player.
5. 5 double ringers in succession—the largest number made in one game by one player.
6. 16 double ringers—the iragest number made by two players in one 50-point game.

Title Holders Who Won't Fight Blamed For Fistic Famine

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—The worthy state athletic commission plans to act today on the challenge of Tom Gibbons to Gene Tunney, a young man who is pleased to call himself the light heavyweight champion of America. The resultant showdown, if any, will produce one of six new champions likely to be crowned during 1925. If Tunney is ever so ill-advised as to place himself in one and the same ring with Gibbons, his reign will cease automatically.

The trick, of course, is to get Tunney to defend the title, just as is the case with all other champions. They ran around the sun from one end of 1924 to the other and a fistic famine was the result. But the dread day of reckoning is at hand. Harken to our Mr. Rickard who speaks with authority on the subject.

"It would be a great thing for boxing if we have a titular house cleaning in 1925," he said. "As fighters, some of our champions are not even good actors. Something will have to be done about the sidestepping of our champions and I look for the state athletic commission to take definite action soon. Say what you will, a champion is only a champion as long as he is ready to meet any one in the field. When he isn't, his title becomes a joke."

In the opinion of Rickard and others, Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker are the only champions who figure to stick with the situation through another year. The rest of them either are passing or rapidly becoming so.

Starting at the bottom and working up, as did the hero in that literary epic, from bootblack to bootlegger, we have the Pancho Villa dominating the flyweight class. Pancho is believed to be slipping badly, and some even go as far as to suggest that he hasn't the slightest intention of returning to America.

The writer does not hold with this idea. There is important money awaiting Pancho here in a titular frolic with Frankie Genaro and the Fillipino is known as a collector of rare and well done coins. When he comes on to collect it is the general idea that that Genaro will fall heir to the title. He has beaten Villa three times.

Eddie Cannonball Martin, the new bantam champion, may or may not remain with us indefinitely. The division has few good fighters, Abe Goldstein and the Cannonball, champions past and present, being its only really representative men. Goldstein is the better of the two and probably would win in a return bout, if any.

Johnny Dundee has forsaken the featherweight title leaving it to the tender mercies of the young and new competing in an elimination tourney. The ultimate survivor will be one of 1925's new champions and he may not be long for this life, at that. The contenders are hardly an encouraging lot.

Kid Sullivan, of whom you may or may not have heard, happens to be junior lightweight champion or some such. He is supposed to be through and might lose his title the first time out, just as though any one cared.

Our Mr. Leonard, of course, is very busy opening and shutting stage doors but the big money will get him not later than next summer. It is generally understood that Benjamin no longer can make 135 pounds and be nonchalant about it. Therefore, it is quite possible that he will be "taken" by either Sid Terris or Sammy Mandell. He may step out with Mickey Walker for the welterweight championship, in which case most of the wise money will ride with Walker.

Harry Grob is supposed to be slipping and the boys seem to feel that Tiger Flowers will beat him if they can be set down in the same ring. They also think Flowers can beat Mike McTigue, but I doubt it. No one can beat McTigue unless they wait for him in a dark alley.

Dempsey seems to be immune from disturbance, unless like Leonard his life of ease and refinement has undermined his vitality. In this case, Gibbons would outstep him almost to a certainty and Harry Wills might outrough him.

BRITISH SELECT AMATEUR BOXERS TO FIGHT IN U. S.

LONDON, Dec. 23—The announcement of the composition of the British team of amateur boxers to go to Boston in January, of next year, to meet a team of American amateurs has been received favorably here.

British boxing fans seem assured that the men chosen to represent Britain will compare very favorably with any amateurs put forward by the United States.

The team in full is as follows:

Lightweight, G. Gogay (Oxford and Bermondsey Boxing Club;) reserve, A. E. Beavis (Polytechnic Boxing Club;) welterweight, P. O'Hanrahan (Polytechnic Boxing Club;) middleweight, Harry Mallin (London Police Boxing Club:) reserve, J. Elliott (Polytechnic Boxing Club;) light heavyweight, H. J. Mitchell; (Polytechnic Boxing Club;) reserve Lieutenant, J. Courtis (Royal Army Service Corps.)

Of the chosen team H. J. Mitchell and Harry Mallin are undoubtedly the "star" attractions, although J. Elliott, the middleweight reserve, runs Mallin very close in prowess and popularity.

Mitchell is a very sound and consistent boxer, and he showed in the Olympic Games this year that it will take a very good man to lower his colors in the light-heavyweight division.

Harry Mallin will be remembered as the winner of the Olympic Games middleweight championship, and the fact that there is not very much to choose between him and Elliott is shown by the record that he and Elliott were in the final together, and that Mallin had a hard fight to win the championship. Elliott to this day still thinks he can lower Mallin's colors, and he is patiently waiting for a fight before a London boxing crowd. Some people think that Elliott would have been chosen as the middleweight first string had not the American Athletic Union, in its letter to the Amateur Boxing Association of Britain suggesting the contests, specially mentioned the names of Mitchell and Mallin.

That the stature of American people has dropped two inches in the last sixty years, due to the modern habit of eating hurriedly, is the observation of John H. Kellogg of Battle Creek, Mich.

RISKO, WITH RIGHT KIND OF SOCK, LOOMS AS LATEST HEAVY HOPEFUL

By Norman E. Brown.

In a year or two John Risko, Cleveland heavyweight should loom up as a logical contender for the heavyweight crown, now gathering dust in the closet of the movie home of Jack Dempsey.

At least Risko should be as logical a contender as any of the bevy of hopefuls and highly press agented gents now seeking a crack at Dempsey's sky piece. That is the opinion of many who have seen Risko develop in recent months.

It has been mentioned before, without drawing any argument, that the prime requisite of a heavyweight is the ability to sock. Round-house swings are not the kind of socks spoken of. The short, straight ones that sink the receiver drunkenly like

First of all, let us sight Mr. Risko's k. o. record. While getting his bearings and some pretty pewter medals as an amateur, Jonathan knocked out 39 of the 59 men he fought. He lost but two fights, Tomy Kirby whipping him in three rounds in Boston, and Mike Wallace in three rounds.

Since entering the pro ranks Risko has been defeated but twice. Marty Burke was given a newspaper decision over him in 10 rounds and Romero Rojas drew the referee's decision in 12 rounds—a decision that was given the ha-ha by the assembled multitude. Only the referee's wife can listen to his reasons for his verdict.

Risko's knockout victims include Harry Krohn, Joe Downey, Sam Denis Mike Wallace (sweet revenge), Billy Walsh and a bimbo named Battling J. D. He has point decisions over no less a husky than Homer Smith and the well-known Joe Lohman, who has met the rank and file of 'em for years.

Risko started out as a clumsy, lumbering mauler. His greatest enemies were his feet. He finally led them into the paths of rectitude and acquired some techinque. It was not, however, until Danny Dunn, once a clever little fighter and now his manager, took him in charge that Risko really found himself.

Risko held his own with Rojas early in the fight and in the last three rounds had the Latin American backing away.

Risko is young. He has been fighting less than three years, which means that he has not begun to burn out. He likes to fight and has but one idea in the ring—to see the other gent covering the maximum amount of canvas. Which is the proper spirit for an aspring heavy.

Watch him.

Aid Olympic Athletes.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—It was announced today that the Metropolitan Division of the A. A. U. plans to aid in the development of athletics for the next Olympic team by assigning special coaches to work with the more promising of the District's young athletes. The coaches will offer their services to athletes two night's a week, according to the plan outlined.

Leaves Golf Team.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—Miss Marion Hollins, former National Woman's golf champion, announced today that she would not be a member of the American team that will compete in the British championships next spring. She said that she plans to leave for California next month to defend her title in the annual beach tournament.

Hen Makes Nest in Tree.

A hen in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, climbed and flew eight or ten feet up a tree regularly while the laying season was on, and then disappeared from the flock. Later investigation proved she was setting on the nest from which ten chicks were hatched in due time. The nest was in a decayed crotch.

Mail from America recently was taken the 226 miles from Plymouth to London in three hours and fifteen minutes, the train attaining a speed of ninety-five miles an hour at times.

Risko held his own with Rojas early in the fight and in the last three rounds had the Latin American backing away.

Risko is young. He has been fighting less than three years, which means that he has not begun to burn out. He likes to fight and has but one idea in the ring—to see the other gent covering the maximum amount of canvas. Which is the proper spirit for an aspring heavy.

Aid Olympic Athletes.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—It was announced today that the Metropolitan Division of the A. A. U. plans to aid in the development of athletics for the next Olympic team by assigning special coaches to work with the more promising of the District's young athletes. The coaches will offer their services to athletes two night's a week, according to the plan outlined.

Leaves Golf Team.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—Miss Marion Hollins, former National Woman's golf champion, announced today that she would not be a member of the American team that will compete in the British championships next spring. She said that she plans to leave for California next month to defend her title in the annual beach tournament.

Hen Makes Nest in Tree.

A hen in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, climbed and flew eight or ten feet up a tree regularly while the laying season was on, and then disappeared from the flock. Later investigation proved she was setting on the nest from which ten chicks were hatched in due time. The nest was in a decayed crotch.

Mail from America recently was taken the 226 miles from Plymouth to London in three hours and fifteen minutes, the train attaining a speed of ninety-five miles an hour at times.

BRITISH SELECT AMATEUR BOXERS TO FIGHT IN U. S.

LONDON, Dec. 23—The announcement of the composition of the British team of amateur boxers to go to Boston in January, of next year, to meet a team of American amateurs [illegible] been received favorably here.

British boxing fans seem assured that the men chosen to represent Britain will compare very favorably with any amateurs put forward by the United States.

The team in full is as follows:

Lightweight, G. Gogay (Oxford and Bermondsey Boxing Club;) reserve, A. E. Beavis (Polytechnic Boxing Club;) welterweight, P. O'Hanrahan (Polytechnic Boxing Club;) middleweight, Harry Mallin (London Police Boxing Club;) reserve, J. Elliott (Polytechnic Boxing Club;) light heavyweight, H. J. Mitchell; (Polytechnic Boxing Club;) reserve Lieutenant, J. Courtis (Royal Army Service Corps.)

Of the chosen team H. J. Mitchell and Harry Mallin are undoubtedly the "star" attractions, although J. Elliott, the middleweight reserve, runs Mallin very close in prowess and popularity.

Mitchell is a very sound and consistent boxer, and he showed in the Olympic Games this year that it will take a very good man to lower his colors in the light-heavyweight division.

Harry Mallin will be remembered as the winner of the Olympic Games middleweight championship, and the fact that there is not very much to choose between him and Elliott is shown by the record that he and Elliott were in the final together, and that Mallin had a hard fight to win the championship. Elliott to this day still thinks he can lower Mallin's colors, and he is patiently waiting for a fight before a London boxing crowd. Some people think that Elliott would have been chosen as the middleweight first string had not the American Athletic Union, in its letter to the Amateur Boxing Association of Britain suggesting the contests, specially mentioned the names of Mitchell and Mallin.

That the stature of American people has dropped two inches in the last sixty years, due to the modern habit of eating hurriedly, is the observation of John H. Kellogg of Battle Creek, Mich.

RISKO, WITH RIGHT KIND OF SOCK, LOOMS AS LATEST HEAVY HOPEFUL

By Norman E. Brown.

In a year or two John Risko, Cleveland heavyweight should loom up as a logical contender for the heavyweight crown, now gathering dust in the closet of the movie home of Jack Dempsey.

At least Risko should be as logical a contender as any of the bevy of hopefuls and highly press-agented gents now seeking a crack at Dempsey's sky piece. That is the opinion of many who have seen Risko develop in recent months.

It has been mentioned before, without drawing any argument, that the prime requisite of a heavyweight is the ability to sock. Round-house swings are not the kind of socks spoken of. The short, straight ones that sink the receiver drunkenly like a soggy, water-logged ship, are the right kind. And Risko has these.

First of all, let us sight Mr. Risko's k. o. record. While getting his bearings and some pretty pewter medals as an amateur, Jonathan knocked out 39 of the 59 men he fought. He lost but two fights, Tomy Kirby whipping him in three rounds in Boston, and Mike Wallace in three rounds.

Since entering the pro ranks Risko has been defeated but twice. Marty Burke was given a newspaper decision over him in 10 rounds and Romero Rojas drew the referee's decision in 12 rounds—a decision that was given the ha-ha by the assembled multitude. Only the referee's wife can listen to his reasons for his verdict.

Risko's knockout victims include Harry Krohn, Joe Downey, Sam Denis Mike Wallace (sweet revenge), Billy Walsh and a bimbo named Battling J. D. He has point decisions over no less a husky than Homer Smith and the well-known Joe Lohman, who has met the rank and file of 'em for years.

Risko started out as a clumsy, lumbering mauler. His greatest enemies were his feet. He finally led them into the paths of rectitude and acquired some techinque. It was not, however, until Danny Dunn, once a clever little fighter and now his manager, took him in charge that Risko really found himself.

Risko held his own with Rojas early in the fight and in the last three rounds had the Latin American backing away.

Risko is young. He has been fighting less than three years, which means that he has not begun to burn out. He likes to fight and has but one idea in the ring—to see the other gent covering the maximum amount of canvas. Which is the proper spirit for an aspring heavy.

Watch him.

Aid Olympic Athletes.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—It was announced today that the Metropolitan Division of the A. A. U. plans to aid in the development of athletics for the next Olympic team by assigning special coaches to work with the more promising of the District's young athletes. The coaches will offer their services to athletes two night's a week, according to the plan outlined.

Leaves Golf Team.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—Miss Marion Hollins, former National Woman's golf champion, announced today that she would not be a member of the American team that will compete in the British championships next spring. She said that she plans to leave for California next month to defend her title in the annual beach tournament.

Hen Makes Nest in Tree.

A hen in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, climbed and flew eight or ten feet up a tree regularly while the laying season was on, and then disappeared from the flock. Later investigation proved she was setting on the nest from which ten chicks were hatched in due time. The nest was in a decayed crotch.

Mail from America recently was taken the 226 miles from Plymouth to London in three hours and fifteen minutes, the train attaining a speed of ninety-five miles an hour at times.

By putting some powder in a hole in the ground, then lighting a fuse leading to it, a prominent labor leader in England committed suicide by blowing himself to death.
